Handbook of Africa's International Relations Tim Murithi, 2013-09-05 Africa's international relations have often been defined and oriented by the dominant international and geopolitical agendas of the day In the aftermath of colonialism the Cold War became a dominant paradigm that defined the nature of the continent's relationship with the rest of the world. The contemporary forces of globalization are now exerting an undue influence and impact upon Africa's international relations. Increasingly the African continent is emerging as a vocal and in some respects an influential actor in international relations. There is a paucity of analysis and research on this emerging trend. This timely book proposes to fill this analytical gap by engaging with a wide range of issues with chapters written by experts on a variety of themes. The emerging political prominence of the African continent on the world stage is predicated on an evolving internal process of continental integration. In particular, there are normative and policy efforts to revive the spirit of Pan Africanism. The 21st century is witnessing the evolution of Pan Africanism notably through the constitution and establishment of the African Union (AU). Given the fact that there is a dearth of analysis on this phenomenon, this volume will also interrogate the notion of Pan Africanism through various lenses notably peace and security, development, the environment and trade. The volume will also engage with the emerging role of the AU as an international actor, e.g. with regard to its role in the reform of the United Nations Security Council, climate change, the International Criminal Court (ICC), the treaty establishing Africa as a nuclear free zone, Internally Displaced Persons, the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs), international trade, the environment, public health issues, security and development issues. This book will assess how the AU's role as an international actor is complicated by the difficulty of promoting consensus among African states and then maintaining that consensus in the face of often divergent national interests. This book will in part assess the role of the AU in articulating collective and joint policies and in making interventions in international decision and policy making circles. The Handbook will also assess the role of African social movements and their relationship with global actors. The role of African citizens in ameliorating their own conditions is often underplayed in the international relations discourse and this volume will seek to redress this oversight. Throughout the book, the various chapters will also assess the role that these citizen linkages have contributed towards continental integration and in confronting the challenges of globalization.

systematically considers these dynamics in two countries Cambodia and Ghana Profoundly different in terms of their history and location they provide the basis for fruitful comparisons because they both transitioned to democracy in the early 1990s made agricultural development a priority and adopted orthodox policies of commercialization to develop the sector Chapters illustrate how commercialization processes are gendered highlighting distinctive gender ethnic and class dynamics in rural Ghana and Cambodia and the different outcomes these generate They also show the ways in which food cultures are changing and the often problematic impact of these changes on the safety and quality of food Specific policies and legal norms are examined with chapters addressing the development and implementation of frameworks on the right to food and land administration Overall the volume brings into relief multiple dimensions shaping the outcomes of processes of commercialization including gender orders food cultures policy translation national and sub national policies corporate investments and programmes and formal and informal legal norms In doing so it offers insight not only on our case countries but also provides proposals to advance rights based research on food security This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of food security agricultural development and economics gender human rights and sustainable development

Institutionalizing Intersectionality A. Krizsan,H. Skjeie,J. Squires,2012-07-31 An exploration of the ways that multiple inequalities are being addressed in Europe Using country based and region specific case studies it provides an innovative comparative analysis of the multidimensional equality regimes that are emerging in Europe and reveals the potential that these have for institutionalizing intersectionality African Studies Abstracts ,2002 Gender, Water and Development Anne Coles,Tina Wallace,2020-05-12 There is a renewed global commitment to water for all Yet even though women are usually responsible for domestic water provision their needs and voices continue to be marginalized in the development process A close analysis of current policy and practice shows that organizations providing improved water supplies to poor communities typically neglect the gendered nature of access to and control over water resources The resulting gender bias causes inefficiencies and injustices in water provision and reduces the effectiveness of well meant efforts This book shows how in different environmental historical and cultural contexts gender has been an important element in water provision It draws on a wide range of first hand material analyzed from different disciplinary perspectives Case studies include analysis of the role of water in inhibiting the fight against HIV AIDS in southern Africa and the challenges of taking gender into account in large water projects in India and Nepal
