Forthcoming Books Rose Arny,1997      Thinking the Unthinkable Nick Harris,2001-11-22 There have been poor countries and rich countries since countries first began but only in the 20th century the century of nationalisms and ethnic cleansings have controls been implemented to stop movement between them The argument for immigration controls stems from the belief inherently xenophobic that richer countries will be flooded invaded or swamped by tidal wave of migrants and that this will lead to increased unemployment amongst the native population Quite simply this is not true overwhelmingly unequivocally the evidence supports the opposite thesis According to Harris immigration considerably enriches the host nation both scientifically and culturally Immigrants do the jobs that most native workers do not want or cannot do Without immigration our economies would dissolve Nigel Harris shows exactly why and how immigration is the lifeline of the developed world s economy using examples from all over the world to prove how immigration makes both the rich and the poor richer and acts as the final safeguard against such ugly world phenomena as racism nationalism and intolerance
