a good specimen of a thorough English country gentleman he was thorough in everything honest faced stout and hearty not over refined perhaps but yet gentle in all his thoughts and acts a hater of a lie and every thing dishonourable hospitable and generous to the utmost of his means a protector of the poor and helpless and a friend to all his neighbours Yes and I may say more both he and my mother were humble sincere Christians and made the law of the Bible their rule of life He told a good story and laughed at it himself and delighted to see our mother and us laugh at it also Had he been bred a lawyer and lived in London he would have been looked upon as a first rate wit but I am certain that he was much happier with the lot awarded to him He had a good estate his tenants paid their rents regularly and he had few or no cares to disturb his digestion or to keep him awake at night and I am very certain that he would far rather have had us to hear his jokes and laugh at them with him than all the wits London ever produced He delighted in joining in all our sports either of the field or flood and we always looked forward to certain amusement when he was able to accompany us He was our companion and friend we had no secrets from him why should we He was always our best adviser and if we got into scrapes which one or the other of us was not unfrequently doing we were very certain that no one could extricate us as well as he could I don t mean to say that he forgot the proverb Spare the rod spoil the child or that we were such pieces of perfection that we did not deserve punishment but we had sense enough to see that he punished us for our good he did it calmly never angrily and without any unnecessarily severe remark and we certainly did not love him the less for the sharpest flogging he ever gave us Directly afterwards he would meet the culprit in his usual frank hearty way and seem to forget all about the matter
