Imperial Islands Joseph R. Hartman, 2021-11-30 When the USS Maine mysteriously exploded in Havana's harbor on February 15 1898 the United States joined local rebel forces to avenge the Maine and liberate Cuba from the Spanish empire Remember the Maine To Hell with Spain So went the popular slogan Little did the Cubans know that the United States was not going to give them freedom in less than a year the American flag replaced the Spanish flag over the various island colonies of Cuba Guam Puerto Rico and the Philippines Spurred by military successes and dreams of an island empire the US annexed Hawaii that same year even establishing island colonies throughout Micronesia and the Antilles With the new governmental orders of creating new art architecture monuments and infrastructure from the United States the island cultures of the Caribbean and Pacific were now caught in a strategic scope of a growing imperial power These spatial and visual objects created a visible confrontation between local indigenous African Asian Spanish and US imperial expressions These material and visual histories often go unacknowledged but serve as uncomplicated proof for the visible confrontation between the US and the new island territories The essays in this volume contribute to an important art historical visual cultural architectural and materialist critique of a growing body of scholarship on the US Empire and the War of 1898 Imperial Islands seeks to reimagine the history and cultural politics of art architecture and visual experience in the US insular context The authors of this volume propose a new direction of visual culture and spatial experience through nuanced terrains for writing envisioning and revising US American Caribbean and Pacific histories These original essays address the role of art and architecture in expressions of state power racialized and gendered representations of the United States and its island colonies and forms of resistance to US cultural presence Featuring interdisciplinary approaches Imperial Islands offers readers a new way of learning the ongoing significance of vision and experience in the US empire today particularly for Caribbean Latinx Pilipinx and Pacific Island communities

Revolution within the Revolution Michelle Chase, 2015-11-30 A handful of celebrated photographs show armed female Cuban insurgents alongside their compa eros in Cuba s remote mountains during the revolutionary struggle However the story of women s part in the struggle s success has only now received comprehensive consideration in Michelle Chase s history of women and gender politics in revolutionary Cuba Restoring to history women s participation in the all important urban insurrection and resisting Fidel Castro s triumphant claim that women s emancipation was handed to them as a revolution within the revolution Chase's work demonstrates that women's activism and leadership was critical at every stage of the revolutionary process Tracing changes in political attitudes alongside evolving gender ideologies in the years leading up to the revolution Chase describes how insurrectionists mobilized familiar gendered notions such as masculine honor and maternal sacrifice in ways that strengthened the coalition against Fulgencio Batista But after 1959 the mobilization of women and the societal transformations that brought more women and young people into the political process opened the revolutionary platform to increasingly urgent demands for women's rights In many cases Chase shows the revolutionary government was simply formalizing popular initiatives already in motion on the ground thanks to women with a more radical vision of their rights

Portable Postsocialisms Paloma Duong, 2024-01-02 A study of Cuban culture and media in the twenty first century as both a global phenomenon and a local reality at a time when the declared death of socialism coexists in tension with emerging anticapitalist movements worldwide Why does Cuban socialism endure as an object of international political desire while images of capitalist markets consume Cuba's national imagination This bold new study argues that Cuba's changing media cultures are key to our understanding of the global postsocialist condition and its competing political imaginaries Portable Postsocialisms calls on a vast multimedia archive to offer a groundbreaking cultural interpretation of Cuban postsocialism Paloma Duong examines songs artworks advertisements memes literature jokes and networks that refuse exceptionalist and exoticizing visions of Cuba Expanding postsocialist critical theory to read this complex mediascape Duong argues that a materialist critique of Cuba's revolutionary legacy must account for Cubans everyday demands for agency and self representation This long overdue reassessment of Cuba's place in Latin American and post Marxist studies shows Cuban postsocialism to be an urgent and indispensable referent for core debates on the politics of participatory cultures in new media studies Portable Postsocialisms performs the crucial task of redefining how we envision imaginaries of social change in Latin America and the Caribbean

Marketing without Advertising Emilio Morales, Joseph Scarpaci, 2011-12-21 In 1993 in order to stop an economic freefall on the island of Cuba Fidel Castro's government reluctantly instituted a series of reforms to compensate for the demise of foreign aid from Moscow These policies ushered in a broad spectrum of national and international consumer products and services previously unknown to islanders In a few short years Cubans were seeing foreign brands among consumer durables and a broad array of logos brought in by tourists Today nearly two decades into these limited market reforms no systematic research has explored consumer brand awareness among 11 millions Cubans living just 90 miles from the United States The paucity of academic research stems from the challenges of conducting public consumer opinion and official state policy contends that consumer wants and needs are satisfied by either a series of generic and Cuban made brands or by independent entrepreneurs who provide brandless products and services Marketing without Advertising analyzes the role narratives and behaviour of consumption in Cuba since 1959 It documents how consumer behaviour has changed since the pre revolutionary period with special focus on the early 1990s The book documents the shift from moral based rewards in the early years of the Revolution to the rise of material based incentives Cubans have long been exposed to foreign mass media in the form of movies music videos cable television shows Although the Internet is highly regulated the Cuban Diaspora in exile brings back clothing personal care products electronic goods and magazines that increase the awareness of brand logos jingles products and services These and related findings from the authors primary research are ripe with marketing implications such as substitution effects price elasticity latent demand for certain products and services and consumer behaviour
