This authoritative handbook looks at the entire news cycle and provides a bridge between the theoretical and academic study of journalism and its actual contemporary practice. The book's main merit is that it brings theory and practice together with contributors discussing these issues from different perspectives in a way that scholars, students and practitioners can find useful in the study of journalism. The handbook is also unique as it undertakes an international scope across regions and cultures both from the West and the Global South while providing an overview which balances the over-emphasis on content in most academic approaches to journalism. The book is divided into four major parts: 1 Conceptual foundations, 2 Interlink between journalism as scholarship and journalism as practice, 3 Regions and cultures, and 4 The practitioner world. The first two sections lay down the foundation for section 3 which provides an overview of journalism practice in different regions and cultures. Section 4 includes contributions by practitioners in which they attempt to respond to some of the issues raised in preceding sections. This handbook will appeal to academics, practitioners and professionals alike who are interested in a better understanding of the academic study of journalism and its actual contemporary practice. Decolonising

Journalism Education in South Africa Ms Zubeida Jaffer, Prof. Ylva Rodny-Gumede, Dr Mvuso Ponono, Prof. Colin Chasi, 2021-12-20. With 342 years of colonialism and apartheid in South Africa, a book of this calibre is essential to contribute to scholarly debates on the decolonisation of the media. After the democratic dispensation in 1994, there was a narrow pursuit of transformation and media freedom while neglecting decolonisation, patriarchal tendencies and the plight of black women journalists who are often vilified while discharging their duties. It was two decades after democracy that the Rhodes Must Fall movement, which later evolved into the Fees Must Fall movement, reignited debates on decoloniality in the academia. Moreover, the book is published during the second wave of Fees Must Fall student protests, and the demand for decolonised free education is inevitable as no permanent solution to the student funding crisis was crafted. In the same vein, the book advocates for decolonised pedagogy in universities, including journalism curriculum. That ownership of the media is still skewed towards white, and with only a few black companies gradually joining the industry, also brings into doubt media freedom, editorial independence, ethics and integrity among media practitioners. Therefore, the decoloniality movement seeks to confront these structural challenges head-on via dialogue to ensure the integrity of the journalism profession. Decolonising journalism in South Africa is published at a time in which journalism serves as a watchdog and a critique of a democratic government and needs to follow a bottom-up social justice approach and become a voice to the voiceless. Therefore, this book seeks to revolutionise the media in a way that even the language of reporting of certain issues needs to be changed to a balanced kind of reporting characterised by principles of no fear or favour. Journalism Cultures in Sierra Leone Sarah Bomkapre Koroma, 2023-06-07. This book provides novel insights into the perspectives of journalists in Sierra Leone and on their work by examining their perceived journalistic values and the influences that shape them. It treats journalism as an occupational identity and as a community that works on the foundation of the sub-Saharan African philosophies that exalts communal values in every sphere of life.

When journalists speak about their social function in society and values they are sharing both their individual knowledge and experiences on their work Therefore journalistic values are never isolated ideologies but exist within the contexts in which they practice In this book Sarah Bomkapre Koroma examines the perceptions of journalists on the societal influences that impact their work ranging from individual procedural organizational political economic and many more Questions explored include What journalism cultures exist in Sierra Leone What effects do societal factors have on these journalistic cultures How do journalists in Sierra Leone describe their roles What epistemological underpinnings do they consider during practice What ethical considerations do the journalists share

South Africa's Truth and Reconciliation Commission

Muhammed Haron,2009 The South African Truth and Reconciliation Commission An Annotated Bibliography is a much needed reference work for those who are studying and pursuing the outcomes of Truth Commissions around the world However it is also a valuable tool for all researchers from diverse disciplines For example those specialising in the fields of sociology political science and literature will find material that appeals and is relevant to their areas of research There is little doubt that students and researchers pursuing courses such as Conflict Resolution Good Governance and International Relations would find this compilation more than beneficial since it covers not only an assortment of themes but it also includes ingenious cartoons by the famous Zapiro and memorable photographs by George Hallet In addition the compiler also inserted a select number of poems that dealt with the issues and themes related to the TRC process

Decolonising

Media and Communication Studies Education in Sub-Saharan Africa Selina Linda Mudavanhu,Shepherd Mpofu,Kezia Batisai,2023-10-27 The book provides insights on decolonising media and communication studies education from diverse African scholars at different stages of their careers These academics located on the continent and in the diaspora share an interest in decolonising higher education broadly and media and communication studies teaching and learning in particular Although many African countries gained flag independence from different European colonial powers between the 1950s and the 1970s this book argues that former colonies remain ensnared in a colonial power matrix Many African universities did not jettison ways of teaching and learning established during colonialism and even those journalism communication and media studies training programmes which were established after the attainment of flag independence did not place decolonial agendas at the front and centre when setting them up Starting with big picture thematic questions around decolonisation the book goes on to consider what the implications of change would be for students and instructors before reflecting on how far it is possible to decolonise curricula and syllabi and what this might look like in practice across a range of subject areas and country contexts Overall this book presents a nuanced picture of what a decolonised media and communication studies education could look like in sub Saharan Africa This book is essential for researchers in Africa in disciplines such as media and communication studies journalism film studies cultural studies and higher education studies More broadly the concepts and ideas on decolonising teaching and learning discussed in the book are relevant to instructors in any discipline who are interested in doing the decolonial work of contesting coloniality Responsible Journalism in Conflicted Societies Jake Lynch, Charis Rice, 2022-09-30 Setting out multiple perspectives from media and journalism scholars this collection addresses the implications that today's technological socio political and economic conditions have for relations between journalists sources audiences and wider publics Applying an inclusive concept of conflicted societies that goes beyond those affected by violent conflict to include traditionally stable but increasingly polarised democracies such as the UK and the USA contributors engage with longstanding questions and new challenges surrounding concepts of responsibility trust public service and public interest in journalism The unique span of studies offers international scope including societies often overlooked in media and journalism studies such as Northern Ireland Turkey Cyprus Pakistan The Democratic Republic of Congo and the Central African Republic Chapters also feature contemporary case studies such as the COVID 19 pandemic as a route into understanding the pertinent issue of fake news and the local turn in journalism Responsible Journalism in Conflicted Societies is not only a valuable resource for those studying conflict reporting and international journalism but will also appeal to scholars working at the intersection of media journalism communication peace conflict and security studies

Living Journalism Rich Martin, 2017-05-12 For journalism to survive and flourish it needs journalists who understand its importance to society believe in and are committed to its core values and can put those values into action This goal is at the heart of Living Journalism a highly readable practical book where readers will learn the core values and principles needed to produce work that informs and enlightens an increasingly mobile and participatory audience The advice and stories of professionals throughout the book allow veteran reporters to serve as mentors to today's journalists Literary Journalism and Social Justice Robert Alexander, Willa McDonald, 2022-08-04 This book examines the prominent place a commitment to social justice and equity has occupied in the global history of literary journalism With international case studies it explores and theorizes the way literary journalists have addressed inequality and its consequences in their practice In the process this volume focuses on the critical attitude the writers of this genre bring to their stories the immersive reporting they use to gain detailed and intimate knowledge of their subjects and the array of innovative rhetorical strategies through which they represent those encounters The contributors explain how these strategies encourage readers to respond to injustices of class race indigeneity gender mobility and access to knowledge Together they make the case that throughout its history literary journalism has proven uniquely well adapted to fusing facts with feeling in a way which makes it a compelling force for social change African Language Media Phillip Mpofo, Israel A. Fadipe, Thulani Tshabangu, 2023-03-13 This book outlines how African language media is affected by politics technology culture and the economy and how this media is creatively produced and appropriated by audiences across cultures and contexts African language media can be considered as a tool for communication socialization and community that defines the various identities of indigenous people in Africa This book shows how vernacular media outlets including radio and television as well as native formats such as festivals rituals and dance can be used to influence all facets of local peoples experience and understanding of community The book also explores the relationship between African language media sources and contemporary issues including the digitalization conundrum peace and conflict resolution identity formation hate speech and fake news Furthermore it shows how local media can be used for development communication purposes during health and environmental crises The book includes cases studies demonstrating the uses experiences and activities related to various forms of media available in African languages This book will be of interest to scholars in the field of communication and media studies health and environmental communication journalism African studies and anthropology
