Handley Page Aircraft Since 1907:

Sir Frederick Handley Page Frank Vann, 2025-09-30 Sir Frederick Handley Page's aviation career began after his dismissal from Johnson Phillips Ltd for unauthorized aircraft experiments. Undeterred, he founded his own company building his first aircraft in a shed on marshland. From these humble beginnings, Handley Page became one of the 20th century's most significant aircraft manufacturers, designing models pivotal in both world wars. His creations ranged from the Handley Page Type O of the Great War to the Victor bomber of the Cold War. Despite his many achievements, his life and legacy have remained relatively unexplored until now. Drawing on extensive correspondence preserved at the Royal Air Force Museum in Hendon, this biography offers a rare glimpse into his personal and professional life. The letters reveal his interactions with aviation pioneers like Louis Bleriot, Ernst Heinkel, and Willy Messerschmitt, with one proposal even suggesting Messerschmitt as a consultant. Page's hands-on approach is evident in his correspondence, including his 1941 exploration of bomber speeds, pressurized cabins, and jet propulsion as countermeasures against enemy fighters. This biography, enriched by Page's own words, highlights his foresight, passion, and dedication, offering insights into his role as an innovator and leader during a time of great technological change and global conflict.

Handley Page Aircraft Since 1907 Christopher Henry Barnes, Derek N. James, 1987 First heard in aviation a few years before the 1914-18 war, the name of Handley Page became one to conjure with when strategic bombing of Rhineland armament factories began in 1917. Handley Page pioneered commercial air transport services across the English Channel and in China, India, and South Africa.

Aircraft of the Royal Navy David Hobbs, 2024-11-30 This is a comprehensive study of every aircraft type ordered for the Royal Navy since 1908. It includes fixed and rotary wing aircraft, rigid and non-rigid airships, unmanned aircraft, and pilotless target aircraft, together with many designs that were ordered but not built, so that the importance placed on them by the Naval Staff or their potential technological impact on carrier design and operations can be explained. Every type, even unsuccessful single prototypes, is described; the majority are illustrated by photographs, many of which come from the author's own collection, and the fifty most significant aircraft have detailed drawings. The Australian and Canadian Fleet Air Arms operated RN aircraft types for many years after their formation, and these are included together with other types they have operated subsequently to give a more complete overview. The book describes over 400 different types of aircraft built by over 100 different manufacturers to offer the most detailed coverage of RN aircraft ever produced. Research for the book took over forty years, and reference material included Admiralty Archives and an array of material in the public domain, including manufacturers' data, individual aircraft pilot's notes, and a wealth of published sources. David Hobbs is uniquely well placed to write this book, having served in the RN for thirty-three years and retired with the rank of Commander. He flew both fixed and rotary wing aircraft, and his log book contains 2300 flying hours with 807 day and night deck landings. He served in seven British aircraft carriers and spent four years within RN Director General Aircraft Department, where he was closely involved with Sea Harrier carrier trials and introduced new visual landing aids for night recoveries and liaised with the USN on carrier operating techniques This is his eleventh book for Seaforth Publishing International Warbirds John C. ENGLISH HISTORICAL REVIEW This book aims to demonstrate how the crisis evident in British military aviation in the early years of the First World War was inherent in the entire development of aviation in the years preceding the conflict After outlining the work of the early pioneers and the growth of an aviation industry as a branch of armaments Dr Driver considers the objectives of the War Office in increasingly seeking to divert design development to their research establishment at Farnborough He shows how the resultant virtual state monopoly in design and procurement had disastrous consequences for aircraft innovation and development suffocating both competition and initiative and leading to the maintenance of inadequate aircraft by the Royal Flying Corps following the outbreak of war The continuing dispute and its culmination in the Fokker Scourge controversy of 1915 1916 graphically characterise the strained development of military industrial relations in this area Dr HUGH DRIVER gained an MA in War Studies from King's College London and a D Phil in modern history at Oriel College Oxford

Aircraft David Pascoe,2004-09-03 In his celebrated manifesto Aircraft 1935 the architect Le Corbusier presented more than 100 photographs celebrating airplanes either in imperious flight or elegantly at rest Dwelling on the artfully abstracted shapes of noses wings and tails he declared Ponder a moment on the truth of these objects Clearness of function In Aircraft David Pascoe follows this lead and offers a startling new account of the form of the airplane an object that in the course of a hundred years has developed from a flimsy contraption of wood wire and canvas into a machine compounded of exotic materials whose wings can touch the edges of space Tracing the airplane through the twentieth century he considers the subject from a number of perspectives as an inspiration for artists architects and politicians as a miracle of engineering as a product of industrialized culture as a device of military ambition and finally in its clearness of function as an instance of sublime technology Profusely illustrated and authoritatively written Aircraft offers not just a fresh account of aeronautical design documenting in particular the forms of earlier flying machines and the dependence of later projects upon them but also provides a cultural history of an object whose very shape contains the dreams and nightmares of the modern age

The RAF and Aircraft Design Colin S Sinnott,2014-05-22 This work examines the evolution of the RAF s operational requirements for its home defence air force for bombers to mount a deterrent counter offensive and for fighters to provide direct defence of Britain It discusses the management processes policies and decisions relevant to operational requirements on the basis of a detailed study of Air Ministry papers of the time By tracing the development of operational requirements the author exposes the thinking behind the RAF s quest for effective fighter and bomber aircraft He describes the ideas and concepts of air warfare that were adopted in the 1920s and shows how these evolved into the Air Staff s requirements for the aircraft which the RAF entered and fought in World War II

Transforming the Skies Peter Reese,2018-02-16 Following the Armistice of 1918 the British Air Industry and the newly founded RAF held a low place in national priorities The RAF was rapidly run down with the infant airlines being given the least possible help and this neglect continued during the 1920s The RAF s role was questioned and civilian air travel remained a dream for most and the province of the well heeled few But the breakdown of the Geneva Disarmament Talks led to renewed interest in the National Air Force and the rise of the European dictators brought calls for rapid modernisation and interceptor aircraft together with the development of further European civilian air routes Here Peter Reese charts the dramatic changes that swept aviation across the dynamic interwar period revealing the transformative last minute preparations for defence in a world where much depended on the contributions of some outstanding individuals The New Coastal History David Worthington, 2017-10-17 This book provides a pathway for the New Coastal History Our littorals are all too often the setting for climate change and the political refugee and migration crises that blight our age Yet historians have continued in large part to ignore the space between the sea and the land Through a range of conceptual and thematic chapters this book remedies that Scotland a country where one is never more than fifty miles from saltwater provides a platform as regards the majority of chapters in accounting for and supporting the clusters of scholarship that have begun to gather around the coast The book presents a new approach that is distinct from both terrestrial and maritime history and which helps bring environmental history to the shore Its cross disciplinary perspectives will be of appeal to scholars and students in those fields as well as in the environmental humanities coastal archaeology human geography and anthropology
