

The background of the cover is a vibrant red. At the top, several colorful graduation caps (mortarboards) in shades of green, yellow, orange, purple, and blue are scattered. Dashed white lines connect some of the caps, suggesting a path or flow. In the center, the title is written in a large, black, serif font. Below the title, a yellow banner contains the text 'Second Edition' and 'REVISED AND UPDATED'. At the bottom, a row of stylized hands in various colors (purple, green, blue, orange, yellow) are raised, some holding rolled-up diplomas. The entire cover is framed by a decorative border at the top and bottom consisting of a dense, colorful pattern of small dots and lines.

Handbook of Research on Schools, Schooling and Human Development Judith L. Meece, Jacquelynne S. Eccles, 2010-06-10 Children spend more time in school than in any social institution outside the home And schools probably exert more influence on children's development and life chances than any environment beyond the home and neighbourhood The purpose of this book is to document some important ways schools influence children's development and to describe various models and methods for studying schooling effects. Key features include Comprehensive Coverage: this is the first book to provide a comprehensive review of what is known about schools as a context for human development. Topical coverage ranges from theoretical foundations to investigative methodologies and from classroom level influences such as teacher-student relations to broader influences such as school organization and educational policies. Cross-Disciplinary: this volume brings together the divergent perspectives, methods, and findings of scholars from a variety of disciplines, among them educational psychology, developmental psychology, school psychology, social psychology, psychiatry, sociology, and educational policy. Chapter Structure: to ensure continuity, chapter authors describe 1) how schooling influences are conceptualized, 2) identify their theoretical and methodological approaches, 3) discuss the strengths and weaknesses of existing research, and 4) highlight implications for future research practice and policy. Methodologies: chapters included in the text feature various methodologies, including longitudinal studies, hierarchical linear models, experimental and quasi-experimental designs, and mixed methods.

Higher Education Access and Choice for Latino Students. Patricia Perez, Miguel Ceja, 2015-04-10. Now the largest and fastest growing ethnic population in the U.S., Latino students face many challenges and complexities when it comes to college choice and access. This edited volume provides much needed theoretical and empirical data on how the schooling experiences of Latino students shape their educational aspirations and access to higher education. It explores how the individual and collective influence of the home, school, and policy shape the college decision-making process. This unique collection of original scholarly articles offers critical insight on educational pathways that will help families, educators, and policy makers intervene in ways that foster and sustain college access and participation for Latino students. It considers destination preferences and enrollment selections, elementary and secondary school experiences, and intervention programs that shed light on how practitioners can promote participation and retention. This multi-conceptual, multi-methodological volume offers directions for future research, programming, and policy in Latino education.

Community College and Beyond. José R. Del Real Viramontes, Marissa C. Vasquez, 2023-08-01. As the transfer disparity persists among Latino/x community college students and continues to widen for those seeking to complete their baccalaureate degree, we asked ourselves three questions: 1) How do Latino/x community college students navigate the transfer preparation and decision-making process? 2) Once at the university, how do Latino/x transfer students negotiate their identities and lived experiences as they persist towards graduation and beyond? And 3) What policies, practices, and programs at both two- and four-year institutions facilitate access, persistence, and completion for Latino/x community college transfer students? These reflections prompted us to seek answers This is the first edited book to provide much needed theoretical and empirical insights on Latina o x students who enter postsecondary education through the community college Our book offers a comprehensive outlook on the pre and post transfer experiences of Latina o x students written by scholars and scholarpractitioners working in the field of higher education In addition we include specific sections that speak directly to policies practices and theory that address transfer pathways for Latina o x community college and transfer students
