Over the past century the explosive growth of scientific technical and cultural disciplines has profoundly affected our daily lives. However, processes of enculturation in sites such as graduate education that have helped to form these disciplines have received very limited research attention. In those sites, graduate students write diverse documents including course papers, departmental examinations, theses, and dissertations; grant and fellowship applications; and disciplinary publications. Thus, writing is one of the central domains of enculturation, an activity through which graduate students and professors display and negotiate disciplinary knowledge, genres, identities, and institutional contexts. This volume explores this intersection of writing and disciplinary enculturation through a series of ethnographic case studies. These case studies provide the most thorough descriptions available today of the lived experience of graduate seminars, combining analysis of classroom talk, students' texts, and professors' written responses, institutional contexts, students' representations of their writing and its contexts, and professors' representations of their tasks and their students. Given the complexities that the ethnographic data displayed, the author found that conventional notions of writing as a process of transcription and of disciplines as unified discourse communities were inadequate. As such, this book also offers an in-depth exploration of sociohistoric theory in relation to writing and disciplinary enculturation. Specific case studies introduce, apply, and further elaborate notions of writing as literate activity, authorship as mediated by other people and artifacts, classroom tasks as speech genres, enculturation as the interplay of authoritative and internally persuasive discourses, and disciplinarity as a deeply heterogeneous, laminated, and dialogic process. This blend of research and theory should be of interest to scholars and students in such fields as writing studies, rhetoric, writing across the curriculum, applied linguistics, English for academic purposes, science and technology studies, higher education, and the ethnography of communication.      Probe ,1962      Ballou's Monthly Magazine ,1882

A Million of Facts, of Correct Data, and Elementary Constants in the Entire Circle of the Sciences and on All Subjects of Speculation and Practice Sir Richard Phillips,1840      The Calculus Diaries Jennifer Ouellette,2010-08-31 Kiss My Math meets A Tour of the Calculus Jennifer Ouellette never took math in college mostly because she like most people assumed that she wouldn't need it in real life. But then the English major turned award-winning science writer had a change of heart and decided to revisit the equations and formulas that had haunted her for years. The Calculus Diaries is the fun and fascinating account of her year spent confronting her math phobia head on. With wit and verve Ouellette shows how she learned to apply calculus to everything from gas mileage to dieting from the rides at Disneyland to shooting craps in Vegas, proving that even the mathematically challenged can learn the fundamentals of the universal language.      School Record ,1897      The American Journal of Science ,1911      Rigatoni Jeffery F Dow,2021-02-12 Sarah Bartlett was an Academy Award-nominated film star, an Emmy-nominated television actress, and a Tony-nominated stage performer.
