Stöhr,1972 El desarrollo dependiente y desigual de América Latina se manifiesta a nivel espacial en la existencia de grandes desequilibrios y disparidades entre regiones entre ciudades y entre los sectores urbano y rural de los diferentes países. Mientras el desarrollo acelerado ha tenido lugar en un pequeño número de focos privilegiados, el resto de las áreas del continente casi no ha sido tocado por aquí. En este libro Walter Stehr analiza las experiencias de los programas de desarrollo regional más importantes de América Latina diseñados para hacer frente a esas disparidades y muestra que las barreras a la transmisión de los impulsos del desarrollo son causadas por una compleja interacción de procesos económicos, diferencias espaciales en la capacidad de innovación social y por una desequilibrada distribución de los poderes de decisión.

Ante la precaria situación de la agricultura, los autores se proponen definir los principales factores que influyen en la generación, adquisición, transferencia y difusión de nuevas tecnologías para los sectores agropecuario y agroindustrial de México, además de mostrar la desigual distribución de las innovaciones tecnológicas, así como propiciar un mejor balance entre las ya adquiridas y la generación de nuevas, con el fin de lograr que la tecnología se convierta en una herramienta para modernizar la agricultura de México.

Globalization, Regional Development and Local Response Leendert Andrew de Bell, 2005

In a world that has become increasingly interconnected over the past decades, economically, politically, socially and culturally, new challenges are posed to development. Since the 1980s, development has increasingly become interpreted in terms of increasing integration into the world economy. Export-oriented manufacturing became widely viewed as the surest recipe for realizing economic growth while reducing income inequality, and the role of foreign direct investments became increasingly important in development strategies worldwide. However, not every region, industry and social group managed to become successfully integrated into the world economy. In order to explain why these processes of economic restructuring have had such a differential impact, this study situates developments within a wider historical, social and political context to establish how these processes of globalization are mediated at the regional and local level. The main object of study concerns the drastic socioeconomic transformation that has taken place in the state of Coahuila, situated in the northeast of Mexico bordering the United States, over the past three decades. In particular, since the start of NAFTA in 1994, Coahuila has become one of Mexico's most successful export-oriented manufacturing states, most importantly as a result of the large number of foreign direct investments it received. However, the effects of these developments have been unevenly distributed among its subregions, while questions must also be raised about its ability to contribute to sustained long-term growth with equity. The key issue appears to be not whether but how regions and localities become linked to the world economy. page 4 of cover
