Frank Horvat 1999 A Visual Diary:

1999 Frank Horvat, 2000 Every single day in 1999 Horvat photographed creating a personal diary of the last year of the century. The challenge was to produce at least one image of substance. But beyond this as a committed European he also wished to include images from all the countries in the European Union. The result is a fascinating and revealing panorama of the vision of one of the world's great photographers: a self-portrait in a way but also a sweeping vista of a continent nurtured by centuries of strong tradition. Illustrated with 480 colour plates. Film and the Holocaust Aaron Kerner, 2011-05-05 When representing the Holocaust the slightest hint of narrative embellishment strikes contemporary audiences as somehow a violation against those who suffered under the Nazis. This anxiety is at least in part rooted in Theodor Adorno's dictum that to write poetry after Auschwitz is barbaric. And despite the fact that he later reversed his position the conservative opposition to all artistic representations of the Holocaust remains powerful leading to the insistent demand that it be represented as it really was. And yet whether it's the girl in the red dress or a German soldier belting out Bach on a piano during the purge of the ghetto in Schindler's List or the use of tracking shots in the documentaries Shoah and Night and Fog all genres invent or otherwise embellish the narrative to locate meaning in an event that we commonly refer to as unimaginable. This wide-ranging book surveys and discusses the ways in which the Holocaust has been represented in cinema covering a deep cross-section of both national cinemas and genres. Liverpool and Manchester Photographic Journal

, 2006 The British Journal of Photography, 2007 People at Work Marjorie L. DeVault, 2008-03 People at Work is noted sociologist Marjorie L. DeVault's groundbreaking collection of original essays on the complexities of the modern-day workplace. By focusing on the lived experiences of the worker not as an automaton on an assembly line but as an embodied human of flesh and bone these essays offer important insight on the realities of the workplace and their effects on life at home and in communities. With contributions from some of today's top scholars each essay is a detailed case study of a different aspect of the working world. Compelling, lively and sometimes chilling the contributors address issues from disability rights to immigrant labor welfare reforms to budget cuts competition to personal motivations. Each one valuable on its own the essays in People at Work combine to illuminate the hurdles that workers of all backgrounds struggle with and more broadly the impact of change on workers' lives in the new increasingly global economy. International Who's Who in Poetry 2004 Europa Publications, 2003 Provides up-to-date profiles on the careers of leading and emerging poets.
