Global Economy Changin Politics Society And Family:

The Global Economy Lee Edwards,2001 The global economy is enormous about 32 trillion per annum and it is pervasive Because of mass communication and advanced technology the global economy affects the output of goods and services of every nation Gone forever are the days when mighty oceans or mountains allowed any country to isolate itself from the rest of the world Time zones have been replaced by the 24 hour a day stock market The fate of the South Korean won and the Thai baht is a matter of major concern to the stock markets of Washington London and Sao Paulo Today no nation is an island but a part of a world wide economic archipelago Today because economics is global politics is becoming global Furthermore the globalization of the economy impacts the socio cultural shape of every nation and people on the face of the earth From soft drinks to jeans automobiles to computers television news to movies the world is being homogenized usually in the American image The film Titanic is playing to standing room only crowds in New York City London and Tokyo Country singer Garth Brooks is the best selling singer in history CNN is the global news network Cultural blockbusters and superstars are eclipsing smaller indigenous cultural offerings and entertainers Is the planet truly becoming Hollywood Yet in a world that is changing faster and more dramatically than at any time in history the family remains the fundamental social unit of every country How is it faring economically socially spiritually Beyond debate the family is being subjected to stresses and strains it has heretofore never known It is buffeted by China s one child policy America s 1 2 million abortions a year Japan and Western Europe s rapidly aging population the spreading AIDS epidemic in Africa and Asia a widening gap between haves and havenots within nations and between nations and the sharpening conflict between fundamentalists and secularists in many countries And still most agree that there can be no viable society without viable families This volume examines the focus of globalization on politics and society and what can be done to preserve and strengthen the family in a world increasingly indifferent to the age old virtues of faith hope and charity

Vietnam in a Changing World Carolyn Gates,Irene Noerlund,Vu Cao Dam Vu,2014-02-25 The last two decades saw Vietnam largely isolated in the world but during this time economic reform and development slowly gathered pace Recent events have led to Vietnams rapid re emergence into the world and an escalation of economic changes A unique insight into these changes

A Millennium of Family Change Wally Seccombe,1992 How do changes in family form relate to changes in society as a whole In a work which combines theoretical rigour with historical scope Wally Seccombe provides a powerful study of the changing structure of families from the Middle Ages to the beginning of the Industrial Revolution Responding to feminist critiques of sex blind historical materialism Seccombe argues that family forms must be seen to be at the heart of modes of production He takes issue with the mainstream consensus in family history which argues that capitalism did not fundamentally alter the structure of the nuclear family and makes a controversial intervention in the long standing debate over European marriage patterns and their relation to industrialization Drawing on an astonishing range of studies in family history historical demography and economic history A Millennium of Family Change provides an integrated overview of the long transition from feudalism to capitalism illuminating the far reaching changes in familial relations from peasant subsistence to the making of the modern working class

Changing Welfare States Anton Hemerijck,2013 Changing Welfare States is a major new examination of the wave of social reform that has swept across Europe over the past two decades In a comparative fashion it analyses reform trajectories and political destinations in an era of rapid socioeconomic restructuring including the critical impact of the global financial crisis on welfare state futures The book argues that the overall scope of social reform across the member states of the European Union varies widely In some cases welfare state change has been accompanied by deep social conflicts while in other instances unpopular social reforms received broad consent from opposition parties trade unions and employer organizations The analysis reveals trajectories of welfare reform in many countries that are more proactive and reconstructive than is often argued in academic research and the media Alongside retrenchments there have been deliberate attempts often given impetus by intensified European economic integration to rebuild social programs and institutions and thereby accommodate welfare policy repertoires to the new economic and social realities of the 21st century Welfare state change is work in progress leading to patchwork mixes of old and new policies and institutions on the lookout perhaps for greater coherence Unsurprisingly that search process remains incomplete resulting from the institutionally bounded and contingent adaptation to the challenges of economic globalization fiscal austerity family and gender change adverse demography and changing political cleavages
