Straits of Malacca Donald B. Freeman, 2003
For centuries the Straits of Malacca, a narrow waterway between the Malay peninsula and the island of Sumatra, has been both a major conduit for long distance trade between Asia and the West and one of the most dangerous areas for commercial shipping. Casting a broad net across several disciplines, particularly geography and political economy, Donald Freeman examines the significance of the Straits as both a trade gateway and a choke point that has forced generations of sailors to run the gauntlet. Rather than the more conventional historical narrative approach, he offers an innovative adoption of an interdisciplinary analytical perspective through his use of detailed case studies of trading systems and shipping hazards.

Civil Society Regionalization in Southern Africa Andréas Godsäter, 2016-05-12
This book investigates civil society regionalization in Southern Africa. The point of departure is the study of new regionalism, which refers to the wave of regional integration globally since the 1980s. However, whilst the current regionalism studies undoubtedly contribute to a deeper understanding of regional processes, important gaps remain, in particular the relatively scant emphasis given to civil society. This particularly relates to regions in the global South, including Southern Africa. The overarching aim of this book is therefore to analyse the dynamics of civil society regionalization in Southern Africa, both empirically and from a theoretical perspective, through analysing the cases of trade and HIV/AIDS. The study finds that CSOs can be more active in regional governance than has previously been conceptualized and are also highly active in terms of constructing regionalization through framing issues and, to a less extent, making identities regional. Furthermore, the book enhances knowledge of the heterogeneous nature of civil society regionalization. Lastly, it is demonstrated that going regional is only partly an autonomous process and also has to be understood as under the influence of the deeper statist and capitalist social structures marking the regional order in Southern Africa.
