Tracing the Roots of Globalization and Business Principles Lawrence A. Beer, 2011-08-17 A central theme to the text is in fact that the commercial process is central to the human condition The onus to exchange the bartering of the fruits of one s labor achieved by physical work or applied knowledge with another is the natural condition of humankind It separates us from all other species on earth and underscores humankind s desire to reach out and touch integrate with others Such natural process the trade initiative is the root of modern globalization It is also the prime contributor to the development of civilization and has provided the world with a continuing component that sustains progress and improves life Given this consideration the business system and the institutions created to utilize it have continued to live up to its influential heritage as a central tool in societal progression although like most human endeavors it is fought with mistakes and errors it is not perfect Acquainting students and managers with their heritage sets the stage for the next act in the never ending commercial process The trading activity although always beset with stumbling blocks has always strived to live up to its human promise to make the world a unified better place Such a goal should not be forgotten and students as well as managers need to reflect on their wider role providing the golden thread in the continuing tapestry of a global integrated civilization The commercial process is not just about wealth accumulation or profit and loss it is ingrained with social progression and the changes over time Today s business student must see the world on a wider horizon appreciate and understand the richness of the role their commercial ancestors played in shaping the world if they are to be properly educated on the position and responsibilities they will be required to fulfill in the business of the future

Globalization and Partnerships Jacques-Marie Aurifeille, Serge Svizzero, Clement Allan Tisdell, 2007 Growing economic globalisation has increased international business competition and international economic interdependence From this perspective many firms have formed business partnerships and most nations have had to re evaluate their economic interdependence This book explores changes that have occurred or have been proposed in this regard It provides new insights into business partnerships and international economic interdependence given growing economic globalisation and explores the managerial and socio economic consequences of those ideas The contributions in this book have been divided into four parts Those in Part II concentrate on the specification of partnerships and reasons for business partnerships in the context of a globalisation The idea of global networks in which some hard and soft forms of partnerships would appear and mix is introduced and discussed according to the partners involved nations unions firms and consumers and the economic activities whether tangible or abstract Globalisation also has a number of consequences for business co ordination in particular when they are based on outsourcing strategies in which cost reduction is balanced with knowledge transfers These are amongst the issues explored in Part III The difficulty to monitor and predict the effects of global partnerships tends to increase the importance of cultural and psychological variables such as trust and commitment Therefore the role of attitudes and perceptions is very important Whatever the agreement and the conjoined management among partner firms the attitude of the other agents can produce asymmetric affects on these firms and considerably bias their partnership strategy Such biases are particularly likely from consumers Their attitude towards globalisation is not the only bias that may occur Their loyalty is also an important issue in a globalising world particularly in the service sector where lots of partnerships have been made on a global scale eg banks airlines leisure These are amongst the relationship marketing issues explored in Part IV In Part V the factors introduced in the previous chapters are considered from a regional and cultural perspective where nations and regions themselves are engaged in global partnership In this context discrepancy often develops between the domestic and the international globalisation strategies as well as between the capital and labour markets The resulting complexity is particularly problematic for the developing and peripheral economies Novel insights about partnership emerge as studied in this concluding part of the book years Second the common G 7 factor and the idiosyncratic country factors play different roles at different times in shaping national economic activity Finally the degree of G 7 business cycle synchronization among country factors has changed over time
