Globalizing Concern for Women's Human Rights D. Zoelle, 2015-12-24 This study is a critique of the institutional structures and cultural dynamics that pose obstructions to U S ratification The United States is a liberal democratic state founded upon ideals of freedom and equality thus the history of non ratification of major international human rights treaties appears to be an anomaly This book suggests that it is not Liberal democracy as it was conceived and has developed in the United States is problematic as a model in the globalization of concern for women s human rights This study is not a comparative examination of state exclusion and oppression of women Neither is it an attempt to distinguish the United States in the larger sense from other Western liberal democratic regimes in its treatment of women Rather the study is a gender sensitive examination of specific dynamics and characteristics inherent to the socio political economic and legal systems of the United States which have precluded incorporation of the rights of women on an equal basis with the rights of men The interaction of these dynamics and characteristics describes a uniquely American view of itself and its own history which serves to render the U S system troublesome as an exemplar for state incorporation of the human rights of women Unreserved ratification of CEDAW constitutes a strong indication of effort by the ratifying state to protect the human rights of women The United States has refused to ratify CEDAW

The Political Interpretation of Multilateral Treaties Shirley Scott, 2004-07-01 States have engaged in an intensive process of multilateral treaty making since World War Two despite the fact that few multilateral treaties have fully solved the problems they were designed to address This interdisciplinary study of multilateral treaties offers a balanced assessment of the function of multilateral treaties in world politics that draws out the political as distinct from the legal meaning of a treaty text The treaty establishing a regime is regarded as an agreement to set some negotiated limits on pursuit of a common foreign policy goal so that full blown pursuit of that goal will not bring the States into conflict nor jeopardize any State's pursuit of that goal States are then able to continue pursuing that goal with if anything renewed vigour albeit within the agreed limits Theorising the relationship between a treaty text and its political context establishes a basis on which to critically reconceptualize regime effectiveness and on which to develop treaty strategy for use by political actors including international lawyers
