China's Early Mosques Nancy Shatzman Steinhardt,2019-08-07 What happens when a monotheistic foreign religion needs a space in which to worship in China a civilisation with a building tradition that has been largely unchanged for several millennia The story of this extraordinary convergence begins in the 7th century and continues under the Chinese rule of Song and Ming and the non Chinese rule of the Mongols and Manchus each with a different political and religious agenda The author shows that mosques and ultimately Islam have survived in China because the Chinese architectural system though often unchanging is adaptable it can accommodate the religious requirements of Buddhism Daoism Confucianism and Islam

The Tangwang Language Dan Xu, 2017-08-23 This book studies the Tangwang language providing the first comprehensive grammar in English of this Chinese variety with detailed analysis of its phonology morphology and syntax This fills a gap in the literature as previously only a few articles on this language were available The book takes an interdisciplinary approach examining genetic data to determine historical patterns of population migration as well as linguistic data that focus on the influence of the Dongxiang Santa language as a consequence of language contact on the Silk Road The concluding chapter argues that Tangwang has not yet become a mixed language and that syntactic borrowing has a stronger impact than lexical borrowing on languages

Literacy in the Persianate World Brian Spooner, William L. Hanaway, 2012-03-19 Persian has been a written language since the sixth century B C Only Chinese Greek and Latin have comparable histories of literacy Although Persian script changed first from cuneiform to a modified Aramaic then to Arabic from the ninth to the nineteenth centuries it served a broader geographical area than any language in world history It was the primary language of administration and belles lettres from the Balkans under the earlier Ottoman Empire to Central China under the Mongols and from the northern branches of the Silk Road in Central Asia to southern India under the Mughal Empire Its history is therefore crucial for understanding the function of writing in world history Each of the chapters of Literacy in the Persianate World opens a window onto a particular stage of this history starting from the reemergence of Persian in the Arabic script after the Arab Islamic conquest in the seventh century A D through the establishment of its administrative vocabulary its literary tradition its expansion as the language of trade in the thirteenth century and its adoption by the British imperial administration in India before being reduced to the modern role of national language in three countries Afghanistan Iran and Tajikistan in the twentieth century Two concluding chapters compare the history of written Persian with the parallel histories of Chinese and Latin with special attention to the way its use was restricted and channeled by social practice This is the first comparative study of the historical role of writing in three languages including two in non Roman scripts over a period of two and a half millennia providing an opportunity for reassessment of the work on literacy in English that has accumulated over the past half century The editors take full advantage of this opportunity in their introductory essay PMIRC volume 4
