Schoonhoven,Joop J. A. van Loon,Marcel Dicke,2005-12-01 Half of all insect species are dependent on living plant tissues consuming about 10% of plant annual production in natural habitats and an even greater percentage in agricultural systems despite sophisticated control measures Plants possess defences that are effective against almost all herbivorous insect species Host plant specialization observed in over 80% of these animals appears to be an effective adaptation to breach these defence systems The mechanisms underlying plant defence to invading herbivores on the one side and insect adaptations to utilize plants for nutrition defence and shelter on the other are the main subjects of this book In the case of plants exposed to insect herbivores they include the activation of defence systems in order to minimize damage as well as the emission of chemical signals that may attract natural enemies of the invading herbivores and may be exploited by neighbouring plants that mount defences as well For insects they include complex behavioural adaptations and their underlying sensory systems with their implications for learning and nutritional plasticity as well as the endocrinological aspects of life cycle synchronization with host plant phenology Insect Plant Biology discusses the operation of these mechanisms at the molecular and organismal levels and explicitly puts these in the context of both ecological interactions and evolutionary processes In doing so it uncovers the highly intricate antagonistic as well as mutualistic interactions that have evolved between plants and insects The book concludes with a chapter on the application of our knowledge of insect plant interactions to agricultural production This multidisciplinary approach will appeal to students in biology agricultural entomology ecology and indeed anyone interested in the principles underlying the relationships between the two largest groups of organisms on earth plants and insects The Neem Tree Heinrich Schmutterer,1995-07-11 The most comprehensive and best illustrated treatment of the fascinating tropical neem tree Azadirachta indica and its unique substances The extracts from the neem tree have an enormously broad range of applications The main substance azadirachtin a tetranortriterpenoid influences the hormone system of insects exerting thereby a pesticidal effect Feeding activity reproduction and flying ability of insects are also affected It is biologically degradable and can be easily extracted from the seeds of the tree Other important uses of neem tree products are antifertility and population control cure of human diseases manure and nitrification inhibitors feeds for domestic animals soap production With its exhaustive treatment of the neem tree and closely related plants this book provides us with an impressive example of the varied uses of renewable resources Arthropod-Plant Interactions Guy Smagghe,2012-04-03 The book consists of multiple chapters by leading experts on the different aspects in the unique relationship between arthropods and plants the underlying mechanisms realized successes and failures of interactions and application for IPM and future lines of research and perspectives Interesting is the availability of the current genomes of different insects mites and nematodes and different important plants and agricultural crops to bring better insights in the cross talk mechanisms and interacting players This book will be the first one that integrates all this fascinating and newest from the last 5 years information from different leading research laboratories in the world and with perspectives from academia government and industry Using the Agricultural, Environmental, and Food Literature Barbara S.
