Mehlinger,Roxana Ma Newman,2001 More than 40 years ago recognizing that higher education would have to take responsibility for educating Americans about other world cultures and societies Congress passed the National Defense Education Act later known as the Higher Education Act Title VI of this act has provided extensive support for foreign languages and area studies development in the nation's universities and colleges. As a result, millions of Americans have been able to acquire knowledge about other parts of the world. Today there are new issues, demands, and perspectives. Americans are more likely than ever to encounter different cultures, business practices, histories, ideologies, and ways of life. In addition, the United States is increasingly called upon to intervene or mediate in regional and local crises far beyond its borders. U.S. educational institutions must continue to help citizens to have informed opinions about complex international problems. Changing Perspectives on International Education is designed to be used by administrators and planners in U.S. education. It covers the field of international studies as it has developed in the United States from its beginnings and accomplishments under Title VI to the current paradigmatic shifts taking place in research, teaching, and outreach. A major section is devoted to internationalizing the curriculum of K-12 schools. It concludes with a look at future trends and how they may affect international scholarship and training in the new century. It also provides an extensive bibliography of international resources. The Social Studies Curriculum E. Wayne Ross, 1997-01-01

Presents a substantive overview of the issues faced in social studies curriculum design, development, and implementation, with an emphasis on diversity of purposes and forms of knowledge within social studies as a school subject. The Political Economy of Global Citizenship Education Vanessa De Oliveira Andreotti, 2016-03-16 This edited collection offers analyses of global citizenship education within and across different national contexts. This book illustrates the contingency of definitions, the complexities of juxtaposing demands and priorities in different educational contexts, and the difficulties and tensions of asking a question that is arguably one of the most pressing of our time: how should we live together in interdependent ecologies in a finite planet. In the discipline of education, where market imperatives and the dictatorship of effective, replicable results have laid siege to independent debates, this book aims to emphasize the importance of raising our intellectual game as educators to interrupt new and old problematic patterns of engagements, representations, uncomplicated solutions, and conceptual straightjackets. Contributors to this volume address the tensions between homogenizing universalisms and parochial specificisms, ethnocentrism and relativism, deficit theorizations and romanticizations of difference, fantasies of supremacy and paralysis in guilt, the global and the local. The chapters take different approaches to map the origins, meanings, workings, ethics, politics, and implications of initiatives, approaches, and conceptual frameworks related to the ideas of globalization, citizenship, and education in different sites of knowledge production. This book was originally published as a special issue of Globalisation, Societies and Education. Resources in Education, 2000-10
