O. Griffiths,2012 How is law mobilized and who has the power and authority to construct its meaning This important volume examines this question as well as how law is constituted and reconfigured through social processes that frame both its continuity and transformation over time The volume highlights how power is deployed under conditions of legal pluralism exploring its effects on livelihoods and on social institutions including the state Such an approach not only demonstrates how the state through its various development programs and organizational structures attempts to control territory and people but also relates the mechanisms of state control to other legal modes of control and regulation at both local and supranational levels Ethnography and Law Eve Darian-Smith,2017-11-30 Ethnographies of law are historically associated with anthropology and the study of far away places and people In contrast this volume underscores the importance of ethnographic research in analyzing law in all societies particularly complex developed nations By exploring recent ethnographic research by socio legal scholars across a range of disciplines the volume highlights how an ethnographic approach helps in appreciating the realities of legal pluralism the subtle contradictions in any legal system and how legal meaning is constantly reproduced on the ground through the cultural frames and practices of peoples everyday lives Globalization, the Nation-State and the Citizen Alan Reid,Judith Gill,Alan Sears,2013-03-01 The past decade has seen an explosion of interest in civics and citizenship education There have been unprecedented developments in citizenship education taking place in schools adult education centers or in the less formally structured spaces of media images and commentary around the world This book provides an overview of the development of civics and citizenship education policy across a range of nation states The contributors all widely respected scholars in the field of civics and citizenship education provide a thorough understanding of the different ways in which citizenship has been taken up by educators governments and the wider public Citizenship is never a single given unproblematic concept but rather its meanings have to be worked through and developed in terms of the particularities of socio political location and history This volume promotes a wider and more grounded understanding of the ways in which citizenship education is enacted across different nation states in order to develop education for active and participatory citizenry in both local and global contexts From Transnational Relations to Transnational Laws Shaheen Sardar Ali, Anne Griffiths, 2016-04-15 This book approaches law as a process embedded in transnational personal religious communicative and economic relationships that mediate between international national and local practices norms and values It uses the concept living law to describe the multiplicity of norms manifest in transnational moral social or economic practices that transgress the territorial and legal boundaries of the nation state Focusing on transnational legal encounters located in family life diasporic religious institutions and media events in countries like Norway Sweden Britain and Scotland it demonstrates the multiple challenges that accelerated mobility and increased cultural and normative diversity is posing for Northern European law For in this part of the world as elsewhere national law is challenged by a mixture of expanding human rights obligations and unprecedented cultural and normative pluralism enhanced by expanding global communication and market relations As a consequence transnationalization of law appears to create homogeneity fragmentation and ambiguity expanding space for some actors while silencing others Through the lens of a variety of important contemporary subjects the authors thus engage with the nature of power and how it is accommodated ignored or resisted by various actors when transnational practices encounter national and local law

Muslim Belonging in Secular India Taylor C. Sherman, 2015-08-25 Using the princely state of Hyderabad as a case study Sherman surveys the experience of Muslim communities in postcolonial India The Invisibility Bargain Jeffrey D. Pugh, 2021 Migrants fleeing economic hardship or violence are entitled to a range of protections and rights under domestic and international law yet they are often denied such protections in practice In an era of mass migration and restrictive responses migrant acceptance is often contingent on the expectation that they contribute economically to the host country while remaining politically and socially invisible These unwritten expectations which Jeffrey D Pugh calls the invisibility bargain produce a precarious status in which migrants visible differences or overt political demands on the state may be met with hostile backlash from the host society In this context governance networks of state and non state actors form an institutional web that can provide indirect access to rights resources and protection but simultaneously help migrants avoid negative backlash against visible political activism The Invisibility Bargain seeks to understand how migrants negotiate their place in receiving societies and adapt innovative strategies to integrate participate and access protection Specifically the book examines Ecuador the largest recipient of refugees in Latin America and assesses how it achieved migrant human security gains despite weak state presence in peripheral areas Pugh deploys evidence from 15 months of fieldwork spanning ten years in Ecuador including 170 interviews an original survey of Colombian migrants in six provinces network analysis and discourse analysis of hundreds of presidential speeches and news media articles He argues that localities with more dense networks composed of more diverse actors tend to produce greater human security for migrants and their neighbors The book challenges the conventional understanding of migration and security providing a new approach to the negotiation of authority between state and society By examining the informal pathways to human security Pugh dismantles the false dichotomy between international and national politics and exposes the micro politics of institutional innovation
