Gloria Mundi Harold Frederic Edition Vol 4:

The Descent of Love Bert Bender, 2015-11-16 Upon its publication in 1871 Charles Darwin's The Descent of Man and Selection in Relation to Sex sent shock waves through the scientific community and the public at large. In an original and persuasive study Bert Bender demonstrates that it is this treatise on sexual selection rather than any of Darwin's earlier works on evolution that provoked the most immediate and vigorous response from American fiction writers. These authors embraced and incorporated Darwin's theories, insights, and language, creating an increasingly dark and violent view of sexual love in American realist literature. In The Descent of Love Bender carefully rereads the works of William Dean Howells, Henry James, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Sarah Orne Jewett, Kate Chopin, Harold Frederic, Charles W. Chesnutt, Edith Wharton, and Ernest Hemingway, teasing from them a startling but utterly convincing preoccupation with questions of sexual selection. Competing for readership as novelists who best grasped the real nature of human love, these writers also participated in a heated social debate over racial and sexual differences and the nature of sex itself. Influenced more by The Descent of Man than by The Origin of Species, Bender's novelists built upon Darwin's anthropological and zoological materials to anatomize their characters' courtship behavior, returning consistently to concerns with physical beauty, natural dominance, and the power to select a mate. Bringing the resources of the history of science and intellectual history to this, the first full-length study of the impact of Darwin's theories in American literature, Bender revises accepted views of social Darwinism, American literary realism, and modernism in American literature, forever changing our perceptions of courtship and sexual interaction in American fiction from 1871 to 1926 and beyond.

The Harold Frederic Edition Harold Frederic, 1977 American Literary Realism, 1870-1910, 1997 Some vols accompanied by separate issues called special number Reluctant Expatriate Robert Myers, 1995-08-30 This book is the first full-length biographical and critical study of the American Realist author Harold Frederic (1856-1898). As London correspondent for the New York Times and the author of nine novels, Frederic was internationally known at the time of his death; today he is remembered mainly for his novel The Damnation of Theron Ware (1896). Drawing on archival and published material not available to earlier writers, on Frederic Myers paints a fascinating portrait of the man and his times as an expatriate in London in the 1890s, his friendship with James Crane Wells and their circle, and the scandal surrounding his death at the age of 42. Frederic was a colorful fellow. As a correspondent in London in the 1890s, he knew Henry James, Stephen Crane, George Gissing, and a host of other literary characters. He fully lived a bohemian life, keeping a real wife and a common-law wife simultaneously, fathering broods of children, writing journalism and novels at a great rate, and dying at 42 of overwork, partly because he let his second wife talk him into refusing medical help, leading to a scandalous court case. Myers concentrates on four main themes: Frederic as an expatriate, his work as representative of the transition from realism to naturalism in American literature, Frederic as a transitional author in the shift from 19th-century to 20th-century styles of publishing, and Frederic as a representative of the fin de siècle. Myers has worked extensively with Frederic's correspondence as well as in publishers' archives especially Scribner's and he sees Frederic as a writer who flourished just as the American literary marketplace was being transformed from the rather poky 19th century model into the faster paced 20th century version so familiar today This biography will interest not just specialists and Frederic scholars but also anyone with an interest in American literary culture in one of its defining moments Truth, 1898
