Recording Conceptual Art Alexander Alberro, Patsy Norvell, 2001 Reading the interviews gathered by Patricia Norvell more than thirty years ago is like opening one of the time capsules Steven Kaltenbach made at around the same time and discusses here It makes one feel nostalgic for these uncompromising times so much has changed so fast One should be immensely grateful to Norvell for her undertaking and paradoxically for the long delay in the publication of these conversations nothing could have better highlighted the candor and commitment of the artists who participated in this project than their willingness long after the fact to let their youthful voices be heard unedited This is a precious document that casts a fresh light on the early history of Conceptual art revealing all the doubts and uncertainties its practitioners had to overcome Yve Alain Bois Harvard University These interviews full of the rich texture and confusion of an art movement at its inception began as a process piece in mid 1969 when formalism still seemed worth defeating The artists tired of talking about turpentine struggle to extend the rhetoric of form and as they do so reveal their roles as theorists and philosophers of a newly cerebral art Conceptualism Alberro s helpful introduction frames both Norvell s provocative questions and the surprising responses in a useful book that continues the process of historicizing 20th century art Caroline Jones author of Machine in the Studio The contemporary interviews collected in this volume shift the ground on which conceptualism in the United States should be understood The middle months of 1969 were a time of artistic and social unease when artists were anxious to test and occasionally to declaim as the interviews demonstrate ideas in conversation with a sympathetic interlocutor Patricia Norvell proves to have been an ideal listener She knew conceptualism well enough to keep the conversations honest but not so well as to make the artists defensive and wary The artists had things to say and were not afraid to put themselves out on a limb John O Brian Professor of Art History University of British Columbia A key document of the late 1960s avant garde James Meyer Emory University This book is a reminder that the project of Conceptual art and its artists reasons for refusing the object of art were far from monolithic The differences that emerge in the interviews are spoken in voices that are still fresh and particular but each voice and position is tied to the moment of the late 1960s from stoned mysticism to philosophical idealism from political optimism to materialist critique Howard Singerman author of Art
