The Archaeology of Seeing Liliana Janik, 2020-01-28 The Archaeology of Seeing provides readers with a new and provocative understanding of material culture through exploring visual narratives captured in cave and rock art sculpture paintings and more The engaging argument draws on current thinking in archaeology on how we can interpret the behaviour of people in the past through their use of material culture and how this affects our understanding of how we create and see art in the present Exploring themes of gender identity and story telling in visual material culture this book forces a radical reassessment of how the ability to see makes us and our ancestors human as such it will interest lovers of both art and archaeology Illustrated with examples from around the world from the earliest art from hundreds of thousands of years ago to the contemporary art scene including street art and advertising Janik cogently argues that the human capacity for art which we share with our most ancient ancestors and cousins is rooted in our common neurophysiology The ways in which our brains allow us to see is a common heritage that shapes the creative process what changes according to time and place are the cultural contexts in which art is produced and consumed The book argues for an innovative understanding of art through the interplay between the way the human brain works and the culturally specific creation and interpretation of meaning making an important contribution to the debate on art archaeology Imagining the Byzantine Past Elena N.

Hutter,I.

Rizzo,1997-10-13 The maintenance and effective use of cultural heritage involves important economic aspects yet the field of contemporary cultural policy is surprisingly void of comprehensive analysis from an economic perspective Prominent academics and practitioners here fill this gap They examine the theoretical background on the value of cultural heritage

consider policies from Italy France Britain and Japan and make concrete proposals for changes in cultural heritage policy

The Oxford Handbook of Greek and Roman Art and Architecture Clemente Marconi, 2015 An innovative and up to date synopsis of the field of Greek and Roman Art and Architecture filling a genuine need in the literature     History and Precedent in Environmental Design Anatol Rapoport, 2013-06-29 This book is about a new and different way of approaching and studying the history of the built environment and the use of historical precedents in design However although what I am proposing is new for what is currently called architectural history both my approach and even my conclusions are not that new in other fields as I discovered when I attempted to find supporting evidence In fact of all the disciplines dealing with various aspects of the study of the past architectural history seems to have changed least in the ways I am advocating There is currently a revival of interest in the history of architecture and urban form a similar interest applies to theory vernacular design and culture environment relations After years of neglect the study of history and the use of historical precedent are again becoming important However that interest has not led to new approaches to the subject nor have its bases been examined This I try to do In so doing I discuss a more rigorous and I would argue a more valid way of looking at historical data and hence of using such data in a theory of the built environment and as precedent in environmental design Underlying this is my view of Environment Behavior Studies CEBS as an emerging theory rather than as data to help design based on current theory Although this will be the subject of another book a summary statement of this position may be useful
