International Trade in Services Sarita D. Jackson, 2021-04-14 In 2012 U.S. and European firms accounted for the highest share of revenue generated by the top international architecture and engineering firms in Africa at 27 and 31 percent respectively according to a U.S. International Trade Commission trade brief These findings show that the growth of company revenues in an overseas market does not just have to depend on the sale of manufactured products or agricultural commodities Opportunities also exist for service providers International Trade in Services Effective Practice and Policy addresses a reality that receives minimal attention in the current debate about international trade how the export and import of services drive a significant portion of international trade The United States has a US 269 billion surplus in trade in services with the world On the other hand U.S. trade in goods with the world continues to experience a wide trade deficit of US 946 billion Nevertheless U.S. policy response focuses mainly on the manufacturing and agricultural sectors In addition as an international trade educator in business schools at different universities many of the textbooks emphasize the various aspects of importing and exporting goods Workshops aimed to educate and inform the business community also focus on the trade in goods Consequently business students and practitioners miss another important component of international trade that presents opportunities trade in services The book provides a simple yet thorough introduction on how to export a service to an overseas market The book will guide its audience with a step by step process on exporting a service from research to strategy to implementation Furthermore the book will highlight the opportunities presented by the international level General Agreement on Trade in Services GATS and bilateral and regional level reciprocal trade agreements Service providers will be able to use the book as a guide to start the export process successfully with the first step Essentially the book will provide results in the following areas Time saving The step by step process which highlights various programs and the list of key resources will save future exporters of a service the time that they would spend trying to just understand another market Frustration reduction The book s outline of the formal mechanisms available to service exporters will save them from the frustration that may arise from encountering trade practices some of which can also be very costly in different markets that make it difficult to compete against local service providers Money saving Having substantive knowledge of formal mechanisms and key resources that help to reduce the risks associated with exporting to another market such as not receiving payment will help the services based exporter to use its financial resources more efficiently while reducing its risk of nonpayment International Trade in Services Olivier Cattaneo,Michael Engman,Sebasti n Sez,Robert M.

Stern,2010-06-24 The services sector is key to economic growth competitiveness and poverty alleviation Comprising more than two thirds of the world economy services are now commonly traded across borders helped by technological progress and the increased mobility of persons In recent years a number of developing countries have looked at trade in services as a means to both respond to domestic supply shortages and to diversify and boost exports Any country can tap into the trade potential of services but not every country can become a services hub across sectors The opening of the services sector potentially comes with large benefits but also fears and costs that should not be overlooked This book provides useful guidelines for the assessment of a country s trade potential and a roadmap for successful opening and export promotion in select services sectors It looks at both the effects of increased imports and exports and provides concrete examples of developing country approaches that have either succeeded or failed to maximize the benefits and minimize the risks of opening It focuses on sectors that have been rarely analyzed through the trade lens and or have a fast growing trade potential for developing countries These sectors are accounting construction distribution engineering environmental health information technology and legal services This book is designed for non trade specialists to understand how trade can help improve access to key services in developing countries and for trade specialists to understand the specific characteristics of each individual sector It will be a useful tool for governments to design successful trade opening or promotion strategies and for the private sector and consumers to advocate sound domestic policy reforms accompanying an offensive trade agenda

International Trade in Services Mr.Alexander Lehmann,Mr.Jaroslav Wieczorek,Ms.Natalia T. Tamirisa,2003-12-01 This paper reviews the characteristics of international trade in services and of the World Trade Organization s General Agreement on Trade in Services GATS framework which was established to regulate it Further liberalization of services trade in developing countries as currently envisaged in the context of the WTO Doha Development Agenda holds a number of potential benefits such as underpinning the liberalization of goods trade but it is also being resisted due to its potential adjustment costs Two implications for IMF activities are examined coherence among the three principal international economic institutions and sequencing with macroeconomic stabilization and regulatory reforms

Non-Discrimination in International Trade in Services Nicolas F. Diebold, 2010-10-21 The principle of non discrimination is fundamental to the regulation of international trade in goods and services In the context of trade in goods the concept of like products has become a key element of the legal analysis of whether a trade obstacle violates GATT non discrimination obligations The equivalent concept of like services and service suppliers in GATS rules on non discrimination has received little attention in WTO jurisprudence In light of the remaining uncertainties Nicolas Diebold analyses the legal problems of the GATS like services and services suppliers concept using a contextual and comparative methodology The likeness element is not analysed in isolation but in context with less favourable treatment and regulatory purpose as additional elements of non discrimination The book also explores how far theories from non discrimination rules in GATT NAFTA BITs and EC as well as market definition theories from competition law may be applied to likeness in GATS

International Trade in Services and Domestic Regulations Panagiotis Delimatsis, 2007-12-27 This book examines the regulation of services within the WTO It examines the problem of reconciling a liberal system of trade in services with national governments ability to protect social values through service regulation The book analyses the existing legal framework and assesses the potential of ongoing trade negotiations

International Trade in Services and Intangibles in the Era of Globalization Marshall B. Reinsdorf, Matthew J. Slaughter, 2009-08-01 Quantitative measures of international exchange have historically focused on trade in tangible products or capital However services have recently become a larger portion of developed economies and international trade and will only increase in the future In International Trade in Services and Intangibles in the Era of Globalization Marshall Reinsdorf and Matthew J Slaughter examine new and emerging patterns of trade especially the growing importance of transactions involving services or intangible assets such as intellectual property A distinguished team of contributors analyzes the challenges involved in measuring trade in intangibles the comparative advantages enjoyed by United States service industries and the heightened international competition for jobs capital investment economic growth and tax revenue that results from trade in services This comprehensive volume will be necessary reading for scholars seeking to understand the rapidly changing global economy

International Trade in Services Geza Feketekuty, 1988 Beginning with an examination of the nature of services their categories and increased importance in the world economy Feketekuty analyzes the problems of dealing with barriers to trade in this area through international agreement He discusses how traditional trade theories need to be modified to account for the characteristics for trade in services and the relationship between barriers to international trade in services and government regulations He concludes with guidelines for organizing and shaping the negotiations on trade in services in the Uruguay Round of multilateral trade negotiations ISBN 0 88730 241 6 26 95 The Regulation of International Trade, Volume 3 Petros C. Mavroidis, 2020-11-24 A comprehensive analysis of GATS that considers its historical context the national preferences that shaped it and a path to a GATS 2 0 The previous two volumes in The Regulation of International Trade analyzed the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade GATT the first successful agreement to generate multilateral trade liberalization and the World Trade Organization WTO for which the GATT laid the groundwork In this third volume Petros Mavroidis turns to the General Agreement on Trade in Services GATS a WTO treaty that took effect in 1995 and offers a comprehensive analysis that considers the historical context of the GATS the national preferences that shaped it and a path to a GATS 2 0 The World Trade Organization and Trade in Services Kern Alexander, Mads Tønnesson Andenæs, 2008 The World Trade Organisation plays the primary role in regulating international trade in goods services and intellectual property Traditionally international trade law and regulation has been analysed primarily from the trade in goods perspective Services are becoming an important competence for the WTO The institutional legal and regulatory influence of the General Agreement on Trade in Services GATS on domestic economic policymaking is attracting increasing attention in the academic and policymaking literature The growing importance of services trade to the global economy makes the application of the GATS to trade in services an important concern of international economic policy The GATS contains important innovations that build on the former GATT and existing WTO GATT trade regime for goods This book fills a void in the academic and policymaking literature by examining how the GATS governs international trade in services and its growing impact on the regulatory practice of WTO member states It offers a unique discussion of the major issues confronting WTO member states by analysing the GATS and related international trade issues from a variety of perspectives that include law political economy regulation and business Moreover the role of the WTO in promoting liberalised trade and economic development has come under serious strain because of the breakdown of the Doha Development Round negotiations The book analyses the issues in the Doha services debate with some suggested policy approaches that might help build a more durable GATS framework The book is a welcomed addition to the WTO literature and will serve as a point of reference for academics policymakers and practitioners Trade in Services United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Finance. Subcommittee on International Trade, 1982 International Trade in Services Lawrence J. White, 2008 In this paper I present an overview of international trade in financial services Though often intangible and quot invisiblequot trade in services is important accounting for almost a fifth of total world trade in 2000 and trade in services has been growing in both absolute and relative terms though growth was more rapid in the 1980s than in the 1990s The international negotiating framework for reducing barriers to trade in services the General Agreement on Trade in Services GATS came into existence in 1995 as part of the World Trade Organization WTO The GATS has thus far had only limited success in achieving reductions in barriers to trade in services though a negotiating round among member countries is currently under way This slow progress is largely due to the extensive national regulation that frequently surrounds services and the entry and trade barriers that are often part of that regulation The structure of the GATS document itself as well as the WTO's post Seattle defensiveness reflects the political sensitivity of these national regulatory issues but this sensitivity unfortunately has impeded progress in reducing trade barriers Trade in Services and Trade in High Technology Products United States. Congress. House. Committee on Ways and Means. Subcommittee on Trade, 1982

International Provision of Trade Services, Trade, and Fragmentation Alan V. Deardorff, 2001 Deardorff examines the special role that trade liberalization in services industries can play in stimulating trade in both services and goods International trade in goods requires inputs from such trade services as transportation insurance and finance for example Restrictions on services across borders and within foreign countries add costs and barriers to international trade Liberalizing trade in services could also facilitate trade in goods providing more benefits than one might expect from analysis merely of the services trade Trade in Services International Trade Centre UNCTAD/WTO., 2001 Services have played an important role in world trade for centuries However in the past 40 years the focus of the services trade has shifted away from facilitating the trade in goods to trading in the services themselves Dramatic changes in communications and transportation technologies have made this possible While exporters of goods and services face similar challenges services exporters have to deal with unique issues many related to their intangible nature This guide addresses these issues and offers practical and relevant advice to small and medium sized enterprises to help them improve their export performance or enter new markets

Empirical Methods in International Trade Mordechai Elihu Kreinin, Michael G. Plummer, 2004-01-01 Internationalization of the world economy has made trade a key factor in the growth potential of nearly every economy Hence economists have become increasingly interested in the determinants of international trade and competitiveness Empirical Models i Trade in Services and Imperfect Competition E. Weisman, 2012-12-06 Trade in Services Greg McGuire, United Nations Conference on Trade and Development, 2002 The service sector is the most important sector for most developed economies being the largest contributor to gross domestic product production and employment Developing economies on the other hand have a comparative advantage in labor services however the export of many of these services is limited by many restrictions on the temporary movement of labor imposed through domestic regulation This study provides a comprehensive overview of the international trade in services focusing on market access in foreign markets It also explains how developing economies are dealing with the issue of trade restrictions so as to spur development of the service sector
