Catching Capital Peter Dietsch, 2015-07-01 Rich people stash away trillions of dollars in tax havens like Switzerland the Cayman Islands or Singapore Multinational corporations shift their profits to low tax jurisdictions like Ireland or Panama to avoid paying tax Recent stories in the media about Apple Google Starbucks and Fiat are just the tip of the iceberg There is hardly any multinational today that respects not just the letter but also the spirit of tax laws All this becomes possible due to tax competition with countries strategically designing fiscal policy to attract capital from abroad The loopholes in national tax regimes that tax competition generates and exploits draw into question political economic life as we presently know it They undermine the fiscal autonomy of political communities and contribute to rising inequalities in income and wealth Building on a careful analysis of the ethical challenges raised by a world of tax competition this book puts forward a normative and institutional framework to regulate the practice In short individuals and corporations should pay tax in the jurisdictions of which they are members where this membership can come in degrees Moreover the strategic tax setting of states should be limited in important ways An International Tax Organisation ITO should be created to enforce the principles of tax justice The author defends this call for reform against two important objections First Dietsch refutes the suggestion that regulating tax competition is inefficient Second he argues that regulation of this sort rather than representing a constraint on national sovereignty in fact turns out to be a requirement of sovereignty in a global economy The book closes with a series of reflections on the obligations that the beneficiaries of tax competition have towards the losers both prior to any institutional reform as well as in its aftermath

Economic Policies of the New Thinking in Economics Philip Arestis, Malcolm Sawyer, 2014-10-20 The financial crisis and the great recession have generated the need for new thinking in economics and for new economic policies to secure sustainable and equitable economic development The new thinking in economics is an interdisciplinary approach to economic problems that acknowledges and respects insights and analyses from other disciplines and recognizes complexity and evolutionary theory as relevant for understanding economic systems and economic behaviour New Economics is concerned with institutional behaviour expectations and uncertainty as opposed to traditional economics with its emphasis on equilibrium mathematical formalism and deterministic solutions With the financial crisis brought on by the unrestrained pursuit of personal and corporate profit sanctioned by traditional economics this is an opportune moment to establish a new way of approaching economic understanding based on new economic theory It is also a good time to instigate new ideas on the approach to economic policy across a wide range of areas such as macroeconomic and global governance employment and unemployment social security and pensions This book is devoted to developing economic policies from the new thinking It was originally published as a special issue of the International Review of Applied Economics
