

A close-up, slightly blurred photograph of a person's hands typing on a laptop keyboard. The laptop screen is open and displays the Google homepage, featuring the multi-colored Google logo and a search bar. The background is out of focus, showing what appears to be a desk and some office equipment. A semi-transparent white banner with a rounded border is positioned at the bottom of the image, containing the text "Research Using the Internet" in a black serif font.

Internet Education A Guide To Doing Research On The Internet:

An Internet Education Cheryl Harris,1996 This manual provides advice on how to match research questions with the most appropriate sources and suggests ways to use the unique immediacy and global reach of the Internet to solve research problems in new creative ways Covers using online libraries freenets research and commercial databases and discussion groups Includes easy to follow instructions on learning the Internet

The Student's Guide to Doing Research on the Internet David R. Campbell,Mary V. Campbell,1995 Discusses the tools needed to access Internet resources including Gopher FTP browsers for accessing World Wide Web pages and WAIS and includes listings of hundreds of Internet sites that may be used to conduct research in a wide variety of disciplines

The University of Google Tara Brabazon,2016-02-17 Looking at schools and universities it is difficult to pinpoint when education teaching and learning started to haemorrhage purpose aspiration and function Libraries and librarians have been starved of funding Teachers cram their curriculum with skill development and generic competencies because knowledge creativity and originality are too expensive to provide to unmotivated students and parents obsessed with league tables not learning Meanwhile the internet offers a glut of information on everything under the sun a mere mouse click away Bored surfers fill their cursors and minds with irrelevancies We lose the capacity to sift discard and judge Information is no longer for social good but for sale Tara Brabazon argues that this information fetish has been profoundly damaging to our learning institutions and to the ambitions of our students and educators In The University of Google she projects a defiant and passionate vision of education as a pathway to renewal where research is based on searching and students are on a journey through knowledge rather than consumers in the shopping centre of cheap ideas Angry humorous and practical in equal measure The University of Google is based on real teaching experience and on years of engaged and sometimes exasperated reflection on it It is far from a luddite critique of the information age Tara Brabazon celebrates the possibilities of digital platforms in education but deplores the consequences of placing funding on technology and not teachers In doing so she opens a new debate on how to make our educational system both productive and provocative in the post information age

Student's Guide to Doing Research on the Internet Dave Campbell,1995-08-01 Most college students have access to the Internet through the school they attend but few take advantage of it other than for e mail Yet the Internet is one of the largest and cheapest research tools available Students can tap into information at some of the greatest libraries research centers and scientific institutions all around the world without ever leaving their computer

Read the Cultural Other Shi-xu,Manfred Kienpointner,Jan Servaes,2008-08-22 Read the Cultural Other contains studies on non Western discourse It has two principal aims Firstly it argues that the study of non Western non White and Third World discourses should become a legitimate necessary and routine part of international discourse scholarship Hitherto non Western non White and Third Word discourses have been relegated and marginalized to a local particular or other place in or one might argue outside the mainstream To reclaim their place the book deconstructs the rhetoric of universalism and the continued preoccupation with Western discourse in the profession and stresses the cultural nature of discourse both ordinary and disciplinary as it outlines a culturally pluralist vision Secondly in order to take the multicultural view seriously it explores the complexity diversity and forms of otherness of non Western discourse by examining the case of China and Hong Kong s discourses of the decolonization of the latter Far too often non Western discourse has been stereotyped as externally discrete internally homogeneous and formally containable within a universal general or integrated model The present work focuses on China and Hong Kong s discourses which have been marginalized by their Western counterparts Through culturally eclectic linguistic analysis and local cultural analysis it identifies and highlights the specific ways of speaking of China and Hong Kong their concepts concerns aspirations resistance verbal strategies etc with respect to similar or different issues The culturally pluralist view and analytical practice proffered here call for a radical cultural change in international scholarship on language communication and discourse
