International Perspectives on Women and HIV Samuel A MacMaster, Brian E Bride, CINDY DAVIS, 2013-09-13 Throughout the world the threat of HIV AIDS to women's health has become the focus of increased concern The Joint United Nations Programme on HIV AIDS 2004 reports that almost 20 million women and girls are living with HIV globally accounting for nearly half of all people living with HIV worldwide Infection rates among women are rising in every region worldwide including high income countries in which heterosexual intercourse may now be the most common mode of transmission Although there are many contributing factors to the current trends in HIV most women who become HIV infected do not practice high risk behaviour Women worldwide may individually view themselves as less susceptible than men and may pay less attention about how HIV is transmitted and how to prevent infection There are also gender inequalities stemming from sexual double standards that constrain women's access to care treatment and support This work focuses on international perspectives on women and HIV casting a deliberately wide net addressing the issue of the interaction between HIV and gender in a specific geographic area Our intention is to provide a forum for innovative manuscripts whose contribution to the literature is found in their unique approach to this interaction and application of empirical investigation to unique problems and or populations This material was published in the Journal of Human Behavior in the Social Environment

Women's Movements in International Perspective M. Molyneux, 2016-01-28 The analysis of gender and political inequality and the women's movements that have contested it has concentrated on the West In this wide ranging reevaluation incorporating development studies and political sociology Maxine Molyneux redresses this balance by analysing Latin American women's movements within liberal authoritarian and revolutionary states These studies of Argentina Nicaragua and Cuba alongside comparative discussions of socialism women's movements and citizenship examine the complex and persistent interaction of states and women's movements and the diversity of responses engendered

International Perspectives on Intimate Partner Violence Sandra M. Stith, Chelsea M. Spencer, 2021-09-23 This book examines international perspectives on intimate partner violence (IPV). It highlights the current state of IPV prevention and intervention efforts across countries including Colombia, Iran, Russia, China, India, Turkey, Nigeria, the United Kingdom, Finland, and the United States. The book examines the countries of origin in context, e.g., population, area, religion, ethnic diversity, and includes current rates of IPV in each country. In addition, it addresses growth areas and challenges regarding IPV prevention and intervention, including legal issues as well as cultural and social contexts and their relation to IPV and the clinical interventions used within each country. The book discusses challenges and opportunities for growth and seeks to gain a more robust and systemic perspective on the global phenomenon of IPV. It examines how larger social, cultural, and global factors affect the lives of the individuals whom family therapists serve and advocate for, as well as provide guidance for culturally appropriate clinical and prevention practices. Key areas of coverage include: International perspectives on intimate partner violence; Intervention and resources available for victims of intimate partner violence; Policies and laws relating to intimate partner violence. International Perspectives on Intimate Partner Violence is an essential resource for clinicians, therapists, and practitioners, as well as researchers, professors, and graduate students in family studies, clinical psychology, and public health, as well as all interrelated disciplines.

Health Education in Context: An International Perspective on Health Education in Schools and Local Communities Neil Taylor, Frances Quinn, Michael Little, Dyke, Richard K. Coll, 2012-09-07 This book presents an international perspective on health education and specifically the influence that context has on this aspect of education. The focus includes both formal and non-formal health education and the factors that impact upon its effectiveness, particularly in non-Western and non-English speaking contexts, i.e., outside the UK, USA, Australia, NZ, etc. An important feature of the book is that it draws upon the experiences and research of local experts representing the perspectives of an extremely diverse cohort across the world, 22 countries and 2 regions in total. The book addresses topics such as the development and implementation of health education in different countries, the influence of political, cultural, societal, or religious mores, governmental or ministerial drives, economic or other pressures driving curriculum reform, and the influence of external assessment regimes on health education. By embedding discussions of health education in local contexts and representing a diversity of perspectives on this important topic, this book highlights both barriers and enablers to improving health education across the globe.

Agenda Setting, the UN, and NGOs Jutta M. Joachim, 2007-07-24 In the mid 1990s when the United Nations adopted positions affirming a woman s right to be free from bodily harm and to control her own reproductive health it was both a coup for the international women s rights movement and an instructive moment for nongovernmental organizations NGOs seeking to influence UN decision making Prior to the UN General Assembly s 1993 Declaration on the Elimination of All Forms of Violence against Women and the 1994 decision by the UN s Conference on Population and Development to vault women s reproductive rights and health to the forefront of its global population growth management program there was little consensus among governments as to what constituted violence against women and how much control a woman should have over reproduction Jutta Joachim tells the story of how in the years leading up to these decisions women s organizations got savvy framing the issues strategically seizing political opportunities in the international environment and taking advantage of mobilizing structures and overcame the cultural opposition of many UN member states to broadly define the two issues and ultimately cement women s rights as an international cause Joachim s deft examination of the documents proceedings and actions of the UN and women s advocacy NGOs supplemented by interviews with key players from concerned parties and her own participant observation reveals flaws in state centered international relations theories as applied to UN policy details the tactics and methods that NGOs can employ in order to push rights issues onto the UN agenda and offers insights into the factors that affect NGO influence In so doing Agenda Setting the UN and NGOs departs from conventional international relations theory by drawing on social movement literature to illustrate how rights groups can motivate change at the international level
