

DID YOU FIND EVERYTHING?

Mission accomplished! You've completed your travels to amazing ocean habitats. Now it's time to prove you're a first-class deep-sea diver by going back through the pages and finding some important items from your journey.

Did you notice a few curious seals following you on your travels? See if you can find a different seal species in each location you visited.

Plastic waste is especially damaging and dangerous to ocean life. Some scientists calculated that 8.8 million tons of plastic end up in the ocean every year.

In between California and Hawaii, there is an area of floating trash twice the size of Texas called the Great Pacific Garbage Patch.

Seals are found in all the world's oceans and are more common in colder seas. They can dive deep down and stay underwater for up to 30 minutes at a time. Some can dive over 1,000 feet deep.

Every location you visited contains one item that should not be there. How many items can you spot?

Plastic bag

Boot

Fishing net

Plastic bottle

Tire

Car

We can all help keep our oceans clean and protect sea life by recycling, taking part in beach cleanups, and cutting down on our plastic waste.

How many of these things did you spot on your journey through the oceans?

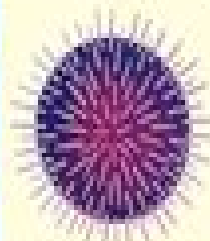

Mudskipper

Pufferfish

Flying fish

Purple sea urchin

Journey of the Giants Maj. Gene Gurney, 2017-07-19 The story of the B 29 Superfort the weapon that won the war in the Pacific Major Gurney writes about B 29 operations in the Pacific asserting that this aircraft was instrumental in forcing the Japanese to surrender Much has been written about this great airplane because any account of the devastating fire raids on Japan or of the dramatic beginnings of atomic warfare would be incomplete without telling the story of the B 29s which figured so prominently in these missions But there is also an exciting story behind that story the story of the giant bomber s journey from the drawing boards of its designers to the day when out of the bomb bay of the Enola Gay tumbled the fantastic new weapon that with a blinding flash and unprecedented power brought about the dawn of the nuclear age That is the story which Gene Gurney tells in Journey of the Giants and he tells it well The book ends with the historic scene on the battleship Missouri which signified the end of the war in the Pacific and with it the end of World War II But while this was the climax in the B 29 s long journey it was by no means its end B 29s continued to serve a variety of important peacetime missions they did their share in the development and testing of advanced nuclear weapons and in the Korean War added new battle honors to those gained in the Pacific Thomas S Power General USAF Commander in Chief Strategic Air Command
