in Illinois in personal contact with the living issues I respectfully avail myself of the advisory functions of my office and speak with greater confidence upon some matters than heretofore I have done When I left Washington the attention of the office was much directed to the enlargement of the great training schools Carlisle Haskell Genoa and Chillicothe and to the building of another such at Pierre South Dakota I tacitly assented to the policy though not without grave doubts as to its wisdom at this time It is not from lack of faith in those schools for I have the fullest confidence but from a growing conviction that the present most important and urgent work is in reservation schools which greatly need to be enlarged and multiplied and which I fear will be hindered and possibly prevented by the absorption of so much of the limited appropriations granted by Congress for those large schools The time has come to build more at the base and less at the apex The Illinois Schools Journal, 1927
