Scientific Investigation of Copies, Fakes and Forgeries Paul Craddock, 2009-02-04 The faking and forgery of works of art and antiquities is probably now more extensive than ever before The frauds are aided by new technologies from ink jet printers to epoxy resins and driven by the astronomic prices realised on the global market This book aims to provide a comprehensive survey of the subject over a wide range of materials emphasising how the fakes and forgeries are produced and how they may be detected by technical and scientific examination The subject is exemplified by numerous case studies some turning out not to be as conclusive as is sometimes believed The book is aimed at those likely to have a serious interest in these investigations be they curator collector conservator or scientist Paul Craddock has recently retired from the Department of Conservation Documentation and Science at the British Museum where he was a materials scientist

Art Forgery Thierry Lenain, 2012-01-15 With the recent advent of technologies that make detecting art forgeries easier the art world has become increasingly obsessed with verifying and ensuring artistic authenticity In this unique history Thierry Lenain examines the genealogy of faking and interrogates the anxious often neurotic reactions triggered in the modern art world by these clever frauds Lenain begins his history in the Middle Ages when the issue of false relics and miracles often arose But during this time if a relic gave rise to a cult it would be considered as genuine even if it obviously had been forged In the Renaissance forgery was initially hailed as a true artistic feat Even Michelangelo the most revered artist of the time copied drawings by other masters many of which were lent to him by unsuspecting collectors Michelangelo would keep the originals himself and return the copies in their place As Lenain shows authenticity as we think of it is a purely modern concept And the recent innovations in scientific attribution archaeology graphology medical science and criminology have all contributed to making forgery more detectable and thus more compelling and essential to detect He also analyzes the work of master forgers like Eric Hebborn Thomas Keating and Han van Meegeren in order to describe how pieces baffled the art world Ultimately Lenain argues that the science of accurately deciphering an individual artist's unique characteristics has reached a level of forensic sophistication matched only by the forger's skill and the art world's paranoia
