Leaving Microsoft to Change the World John Wood,2006-08-29 John Wood discovered his passion his greatest success and his life s work not at business school or leading Microsoft s charge into Asia in the 1990s but on a soul searching trip to the Himalayas Wood felt trapped between an all consuming career and a desire to do something lasting and significant Stressed from the demands of his job he took a vacation trekking in Nepal because a friend had told him If you get high enough in the mountains you can t hear Steve Ballmer yelling at you anymore Instead of being the antidote to the rat race that trip convinced John Wood to divert the boundless energy he was devoting to Microsoft into a cause that desperately needed to be addressed While visiting a remote Nepalese school Wood learned that the students had few books in their library When he offered to run a book drive to provide the school with books his idea was met with polite skepticism After all no matter how well intentioned why would a successful software executive take valuable time out of his life and gather books for an impoverished school But John Wood did return to that school and with thousands of books bundled on the back of a yak And at that moment Wood made the decision to walk away from Microsoft and create Room to Read an organization that has donated more than 1 2 million books established more than 2 600 libraries and 200 schools and sent 1 700 girls to school on scholarship ultimately touching the lives of 875 000 children with the lifelong gift of education Leaving Microsoft to Change the World chronicles John Wood s struggle to find a meaningful outlet for his managerial talents and entrepreneurial zeal For every high achiever who has ever wondered what life might be like giving back Wood offers a vivid emotional and absorbing tale of how to take the lessons learned at a hard charging company like Microsoft and apply them to one of the world s most pressing problems the lack of basic literacy

Cultural identity in the East African novel Regina Hartmann,2014-04-11 Inhaltsangabe Introduction As the Black African writers have taught us we must dance our word for in human speech as in dance lies an offering to speak and to write is also to offer oneself to the other it is to be reborn together This quotation by M Rombaut locates African literature close to the performing arts According to his statement African literature seems to transcend the conventional European conception of writing which is conceiving literature as something planned and permanent The idea of a literary performance in African writing places the author much closer to the story teller who is dependent on his audience and trying to keep in touch with them By processing their feelings in his performance he gives expression to a common consciousness In contrast to the Western author who often wants to stand apart from his society African authors tend to aim their participation in the formation of a shared identity This paper tries to find out how authors from the framework of East Africa conceive of cultural identity Basically I will proceed in two steps part A is dedicated to the development of a pattern within which the complex issue of identity can be adequately discussed in an East African context In Part B I will then apply this discussion scheme to three novels which as I will explain are representative for East African writing in far as this term is justified Part A starts off from some basic observations about identity on the foundation of which I want to deduce the structure of my analysis I will argue that identity is based on ones observation of the environment and on the influence of outsiders All this is to some extent true for two concepts individual and cultural identity The latter develops when a group of individuals feels or is ascribed a common bond apt to correspond to several individual self concepts These individuals may then share a feeling of home which can act as a physical but also mental commitment Departing from these ideas I will show that four issues might be interesting in dealing with cultural identity which can be expressed by some central questions 1 Identity imposed and adopted In how far can others influence our identity 2 Identity rediscovered and reinvented To what extent does our history work on identity 3 Identity displaced How does our feeling of physical or mental bond to a physical or mental space I will call home work on identity 4 Identity integrated How

Time and Transformation Colette O'Brien, 2008-03 The first time Colette O'Brien a noted Northern Californian therapist and creative artist journeyed to the Yucatan she realized that the Mayan civilization's attitudes toward time transformation and spirituality hold deep significance for questing men and women today The Mayan culture had a wisdom about the meaning of life that is no longer available lost long ago in the jungle The Classic Maya created a civilization of astonishing sophistication invention and harmony With their understanding of mathematics and astronomy they conceived the world as based on time and transformation Their home in the Yucatan was the enlightened Athens of our hemisphere Drawing on actual events and beliefs of the Mayan culture O'Brien has crafted an unusual and profound novel of love and betrayal religion and transcendence where the needs of the gods will be fulfilled by mankind and human culture will regain its balance This is a message sorely needed in our own time For the Maya time was everything
