Emotions Stephanie H.M. van Goozen, Nanne E. Van de Poll, Joseph A. Sergeant, S.H.M. van Goozen, Joe A. Sergeant, 2014-02-25 Based upon lectures presented at an invitational colloquium in honor of Nico Frijda this collection of essays represents a brief and up to date overview of the field of emotions their significance and how they function For most emotions are simply what we feel giving our lives affective value Scientists approach emotions differently some considering the feeling aspect to be of little relevance to their research questions Some investigators consider emotions from a phenomenological perspective while others believe that the psychophysiological bases of the emotions are of prime importance and still others observe and study animals in order to generate hypotheses about human emotions Containing essays which represent each of these approaches this book is in one sense a heterogenous collection Nevertheless the variety of approaches and interests come together since these scholars are all operating from a more or less cognitive psychological orientation and use the same conceptual reference scheme Written by experts in their own area the essays reflect the richness of research in emotions Whether these approaches and opinions can be harmonized into a single theory of emotions is a question which the future will have to answer

On the Temporality of Emotions Berislav Marušić, 2022 Berislav Marusic investigates a puzzle about our emotions and their relation to time grief and anger tend to diminish even when the reasons for them remain but love feels like it should be lasting Marusic argues that it is rational for these emotions to be experienced like this

Theory Driving Research: Dennis M. McInerney, Herbert Marsh, Rhonda G. Craven, Frédéric Guay, 2013-06-01 Theory Driving Research New wave perspectives on self processes and human development provides a unique insight into self processes from varied theoretical perspectives The chapters in this volume develop avant garde theoretical ideas to drive future cutting edge empirical research and together in one collected volume make a valuable contribution to scholarly literature on self processes Among the themes covered are resurrecting the I self a re look at the dichotomy between the I self and the Me self based on James s analysis the actualization of human potential naturalizing and contextualizing the self hypo egoic states personal proficiency networks competition and performance relationships achievement motivations passion and optimal functioning in society competence and self worth threat new interpretations of expectancy value research methodological advances in BFLPE research and multilevel models of student achievement motivation This monograph the fourth in the International Advances in Self Research monograph series provides wealth of information on new theorizing and provides a platform for generating the next wave of research designed to understand the fundamental role self processes play in human development

Emotion and the Structure of

Narrative Film Ed S. Tan, 2013-10-16 Introduced one hundred years ago film has since become part of our lives For the past century however the experience offered by fiction films has remained a mystery Questions such as why adult viewers cry and shiver and why they care at all about fictional characters while aware that they contemplate an entirely staged scene are still unresolved In addition it is unknown why spectators find some film experiences entertaining that have a clearly aversive nature outside the cinema These and other questions make the psychological status of emotions allegedly induced by the fiction film highly problematic Earlier attempts to answer these questions have been limited to a few genre studies In recent years film criticism and the theory of film structure have made use of psychoanalytic concepts which have proven insufficient in accounting for the diversity of film induced affect In contrast academic psychology during the century of its existence has made extensive study of emotional responses provoked by viewing fiction film but has taken the role of film as a natural stimulus completely for granted The present volume bridges the gap between critical theories of film on the one hand and recent psychological theory and research of human emotion on the other in an attempt to explain the emotions provoked by fiction film This book integrates insights on the narrative structure of fiction film including its themes plot structure and characters with recent knowledge on the cognitive processing of natural events and narrative and person information It develops a theoretical framework for systematically describing emotion in the film viewer The question whether or not film produces genuine emotion is answered by comparing affect in the viewer with emotion in the real world experienced by persons witnessing events that have personal significance to them Current understanding of the psychology of emotions provides the basis for identifying critical features of the fiction film that trigger the general emotion system Individual emotions are classified according to their position in the affect structure of a film a larger system of emotions produced by one particular film as a whole Along the way a series of problematic issues is dealt with notably the reality of the emotional stimulus in film the identification of the viewer with protagonists on screen and the necessity of the viewer s cooperation in arriving at a genuine emotion Finally it is argued that film produced emotions are genuine emotions in response to an artificial stimulus Film can be regarded as a fine tuned machine for a continuous stream of emotions that are entertaining after all The work paves the way for understanding and in principle predicting emotions in the film viewer using existing psychological instruments of investigation Dealing with the problems of film induced affect and rendering them accessible to formal modeling and experimental method serves a wider interest of understanding aesthetic emotion the feelings that man made products and especially works of art can evoke in the beholder

Emotions Monica Greco,Paul Stenner,2013-10-31 Are emotions becoming more conspicuous in contemporary life Are the social sciences undergoing an affective turn This Reader gathers influential and contemporary work in the study of emotion and affective life from across the range of the social sciences Drawing on both theoretical and empirical research the collection offers a sense of the diversity of perspectives that have emerged over the last thirty years from a variety of intellectual traditions Its wide span and trans disciplinary character is designed to capture the increasing significance of the study of affect and emotion for the social sciences and to give a sense of how this is played out in the context of specific areas of interest The volume is divided into four main parts universals and particulars of affect embodying affect political economies of affect affect power and justice Each main part comprises three sections dedicated to substantive themes including emotions history and civilization emotions and culture emotions selfhood and identity emotions and the media emotions and politics emotions space and place with a final section dedicated to themes of compassion hate and terror Each of the twelve sections begins with an editorial introduction that contextualizes the readings and highlights points of comparison across the volume Cross national in content the collection provides an introduction to the key debates concepts and modes of approach that have been developed by social scientist for the study of emotion and affective life

Pezzulo, Martin V. Butz, Cristiano Castelfranchi, Rino Falcone, 2008-09-25 The general idea that brains anticipate the future that they engage in prediction and that one means of doing this is through some sort of inner model that can be run of ine has along history Some version of the idea was common to Aristotle as well as to many medieval scholastics to Leibniz and Hume and in more recent times to Kenneth Craik and Philip Johnson Laird One reason that this general idea recurs continually is that this is the kind of picture that introspection paints When we are engaged in tasks it seems that we form images that are predictions or anticipations and that these images are isomorphic to what they represent But as much as the general idea recurs opposition to it also recurs The idea has never been widely accepted or uncontroversial among psychologists cognitive scientists and neuroscientists The main reason has been that science cannot be s is ed with metaphors and introspection In order to gain acceptance an idea needs to be formulated clearly enough so that it can be used to construct testable hypot ses whose results will clearly support or cast doubt upon the hypothesis Next those ideas that are formulable in one or another sort of symbolism or notation are capable of being modeled and modeling is a huge part of cognitive neuroscience If an idea cannot be clearly modeled then there are limits to how widely it can be tested and accepted by a cognitive neuroscience community

Oxford Companion to Emotion and the Affective Sciences David Sander, Klaus Scherer, 2014-02-06 Few areas have witnessed the type of growth we have seen in the affective sciences in the past decades Across psychology philosophy economics and neuroscience there has been an explosion of interest in the topic of emotion and affect Comprehensive authoritative up to date and easy to use the new Oxford Companion to Emotion and the Affective Sciences is an indispensable resource for all who wish to find out about theories concepts methods and research findings in this rapidly growing interdisciplinary field one that brings together amongst others psychologists neuroscientists social scientists philosophers and historians Organized by alphabetical entries and presenting brief definitions concise overviews and encyclopaedic articles all with extensive references to relevant publications this Companion lends itself to casual browsing by non specialists interested in the fascinating phenomena of emotions moods affect disorders and personality as well as to focused search for pertinent information by students and established scholars in the field Not only does the book provide entries on
