Large-Scale Victimisation as a Potential Source of Terrorist Activities U. Ewald, K. Turković, 2006-12-19 This publication presents a subject that is unfortunately as significant today as it was two years ago Sadly this continuing relevance seems to confirm the views of the German radical pacifist Kurt Tucholsky who stated in response to the atrocities and sufferings of WWI But men never ever learnt from history and they will not do so in the future Hic Rhodus Recent events in Iraq the Middle East East Timor or the Democratic Republic of Congo and possible links regarding issues of terrorism raise the question what criminological and victimological research offers in assisting to break vicious spirals of ignorance of gross human rights violations and the immense human sufferings in the context of armed conflicts and terrorism The answer to this question still remains open Yet this publication confirms the substantial willingness to learn from the past by critically reviewing large scale victimisation arising out of protracted conflicts in order to better understanding the necessary prerequisites for enduring peace making in post conflict societies and to anticipate and suggest approaches to healing victimising effects Criminal Justice and the Policy Process James G. Houston, Phillip B. Bridgmon, William W.

Parsons, 2008-08-28 Criminal Justice and the Policy Process develops a synthesized policy making model that explains how complex justice policy is developed implemented and evaluated Unlike other texts this study weaves together important aspects of several competing explanations of policy choice into a single model Further this text emphasizes the importance of implementing policy as an important component in the ultimate outcome of policy decisions The book fills a void in introducing students to the policy making process coupled with the importance of justice administration as a component Important themes throughout the book include the role of the media special interests elite policy makers and discretion

Repositioning the victim in criminal justice Olivier Tell, Gabrielle Browne, 2023-02-01 Following erce campaigning by victims groups the international community has entered into a debate that aims to move the victim from the margins to the centre of the criminal justice system For the rst time restorative justice is explicitly regulated at the European Union legal level as a Victims Directive aims to establish a baseline for its safe implementation across member states This ground breaking and timely edited collection aims to contribute to this international debate The book aims to challenge current thinking while highlighting good practices that respect and safeguard victims in justice processes The book uses a combination of theoretical and empirical analysis while utilising original research data collected by the European project Restorative Justice in Europe which was coordinated by the Editor Dr Theo Gavrielides Leading experts take bold steps in advancing the debate for a victim led criminal justice system The book also aims to give voice to victims directly by involving them as authors of its chapters case studies and as research participants The book also includes sample training material best practice and guidelines created by the RJE project through the contribution of victims offenders and experts from across Europe As a victim I believe an increased uptake by victims relies strongly on the active implementation by practitioners of the Victims Directive If victims feel empowered by the process they will be more likely to participate in it to the benefit of the victim the offender and the community Gabrielle Browne a victim of sexual assault and a member of the RJE Expert Advisory Group Governments around the world should open a debate about what is the most important for victims in the justice process victim of crime and RJE participant Thank you for your active engagement with the Ministry of Justice in progressing
