Interpreting Neolithic Landscapes Ancestral Geographies:

Ancestral Geographies of the Neolithic Mark Edmonds, 2002-01-04 Archaeological evidence suggests that Neolithic sites had many different frequently contradictory functions and there may have been other uses for which no evidence survives How can archaeologists present an effective interpretation with the consciousness that both their own subjectivity and the variety of conflicting views will determine their approach Because these sites have become a focus for so much controversy the problem of presenting them to the public assumes a critical importance The authors do not seek to provide a comprehensive review of the archaeology of all these causewayed sites in Britain rather they use them as case studies in the development of an archaeological interpretation Interpreting Landscapes Christopher Tilley, 2016-06-03 Examines role of landscape in phenomenological study of ancient Britain

Interpreting the Early Modern World Mary C. Beaudry, James Symonds, 2010-10-20 Interpretive archaeology meaning the interpretation social science as opposed to hard science of archaeology and archaeological artifacts has predominantly been the realm of prehistoric archaeologists Many historical archaeologists are participating in this disciplinary shift from processualism to post processualism and interpretation but to date few have called their work interpretive archaeology This volume is based on a session at the Society for Historical Archaeology meeting in 2005 The organizers now editors brought together historical archaeologists from both the UK and the US working in the same areas industrial landscape monuments etc but because of their country based training their work arises out of differing intellectual traditions The chapters in each section do not stand in isolation rather the authors exchange ideas about what each other has written They construct dialogues about theories and practices that inform interpretive archaeology on either side of the Atlantic ends with commentary by two well known names in interpretive archaeology in the UK and in the States

Plants in Neolithic Britain and Beyond Andrew S. Fairbairn, 2000-12-01 Plant centred issues are fundamental in the definitions and explanations of the Neolithic as a phenomenon The meeting of the Neolithic Studies Group from which this volume developed aimed to provide a forum for the wide range of approaches now applied to Neolithic archaeobotany at site and landscape scales of resolution

Neolithic Britain Keith Ray, Julian Thomas, 2018-05-31 The Neolithic in Britain was a period of fundamental change human communities were transformed collectively owning domesticated plants and animals and inhabiting a richer world of material things timber houses and halls pottery vessels polished flint and stone axes and massive monuments of earth and stone Equally important was the development of a suite of new social practices with an emphasis on descent continuity and inheritance These innovations set in train social processes that culminated with the construction of Stonehenge the most remarkable surviving structure from prehistoric Europe Neolithic Britain provides an up to date concise introduction to the period of British prehistory from c 4000 2200 BCE Written on the basis of a new appreciation of the chronology of the period the result reflects both on the way that archaeologists write narratives of the Neolithic and how Neolithic people constructed histories of their own

Incorporating new insights from the extraordinary pace of archaeological discoveries in recent years a world emerges which is unfamiliar complex and challenging and yet played a decisive role in forging the landscape of contemporary Britain Important recent developments have resulted in a dual realisation firstly highly focused research into individual site chronologies can indicate precise and particular time narratives and secondly this new awareness of time implies original insights about the fabric of Neolithic society embracing matters of inheritance kinship and social ties and the descent of cultural practices Moreover our understanding of Neolithic society has been radically affected by individual discoveries and investigative projects whether in the Stonehenge area on mainland Orkney or in less well known localities across the British Isles The new perspective provided in this volume stems from a greater awareness of the ways in which unfolding events and transformations in societies depend upon the changing relations between individuals and groups mediated by objects and architecture This concise panorama into Neolithic Britain offers new conclusions and an academically stimulating but accessible overview It covers key material and social developments and reflects on the nature of cultural practices tradition genealogy and society across nearly two millennia

Space and Spatial Analysis in Archaeology University of Calgary. Archaeological Association. Conference, Elizabeth C. Robertson, 2006 The archaeology of space and place is examined in this selection of papers from the 34th annual Chacmool Archaeological Conference

Breaking the Surface Doug Bailey, 2018-05-15 In Breaking the Surface Doug Bailey offers a radical alternative for understanding Neolithic houses providing much needed insight not just into prehistoric practice but into another way of doing archaeology Using his years of fieldwork experience excavating the early Neolithic pit houses of southeastern Europe Bailey exposes and elucidates a previously under theorized aspect of prehistoric pit construction the actions and consequences of digging defined as breaking the surface of the ground Breaking the Surface works through the consequences of this redefinition in order to redirect scholarship on the excavation and interpretation of pit houses in Neolithic Europe offering detailed critiques of current interpretations of these earliest European architectural constructions The work of the book is performed by juxtaposing richly detailed discussions of archaeological sites Etton and The Wilsford Shaft in the UK and Magura in Romania with the work of three artists who cut Ron Athey Gordon Matta Clark Lucio Fontana with deep and detailed examinations of the philosophy of holes the perceptual psychology of shapes and the linguistic anthropology of cutting and breaking words as well as with cultural diversity in framing spatial reference and through an examination of pre modern ungrounded ways of living Breaking the Surface is as much a creative act on its own in its mixture of work from disparate periods and regions its use of radical text interruption and its juxtaposition of text and imagery as it is an interpretive statement about prehistoric architecture Unflinching and exhilarating it is a major development in the growing subdiscipline of art archaeology

Settlement in the Irish Neolithic Jessica Smyth, 2014-05-29 The Irish Neolithic has been dominated by the study of megalithic tombs but the defining element of Irish settlement evidence is the rectangular timber Early Neolithic house the numbers of which have more than quadrupled in the last ten years The substantial Early Neolithic timber house was a short lived architectural phenomenon of as little as 90 years perhaps like short lived Early Neolithic long barrows and causewayed enclosures This book explores the wealth of evidence for settlement and houses throughout the Irish Neolithic in relation to Britain and continental Europe More importantly it incorporates the wealth of new and often unpublished evidence from developer led archaeological excavations and large grey literature resources The settlement evidence scattered across the landscape and found as a result of developer funded work provides the social context for the more famous stone monuments that have traditionally shaped our views of the Neolithic in Ireland It provides the first comprehensive review of the Neolithic settlement of Ireland which enables a more holistic and meaningful understanding of the Irish Neolithic New Light on the Neolithic of Northern England Gill Hey,Paul Frodsham,2021-01-13 These papers highlight recent archaeological work in Northern England in the commercial academic and community archaeology sectors which have fundamentally changed our perspective on the Neolithic of the area Much of this was new work and much is still not published has been overlooked in the national discourse The papers cover a wide geographical area from Lancashire north into the Scottish Lowlands recognising the irrelevance of the England Scotland Border They also take abroad chronological sweep from the Mesolithic Neolithic transition to the introduction of Beakers into the area The key themes are the nature of transition the need for a much improved chronological framework regional variation linked to landscape character links within northern England and with distant places the implications of new dating for our understanding the axe trade the changing nature of settlement and agriculture the character early Neolithic enclosures the need to integrate rock art into wider discourse Art as Metaphor

Aron Mazel,George Nash,Clive Waddington,2007-12-31 Enigmatic esoteric and fascinating the rock art of the British Isles has for a long time been a well kept secret This volume brings together a carefully selected collection of papers reporting on recent discoveries and regional surveys covering British prehistoric rock art from over 10 000 years ago Medicine,

Healing and Performance Effie Gemi-Iordanou,Stephen Gordon,Robert Matthew,Ellen McInnes,Rhiannon Pettitt,2014-02-13 Whether it is the binding of shattered bones or the creation of herbal remedies human agency is a central feature of the healing process Both archaeological and anthropological research has contributed much to our understanding of the performative aspects of medicine The papers contained in this volume based on a session conducted at the 2010 Theoretical Archaeology Conference take a multi disciplinary approach to the topic addressing such issues as the cultural conception of disease the impact of gender roles on healing strategies the possibilities afforded by syncretism the relationship between material culture and the body and the role played by the active agency of the sick Editing the

Schülke,2020-03-06 Coastal Landscapes of the Mesolithic Human Engagement with the Coast from the Atlantic to the Baltic

Sea explores the character and significance of coastal landscapes in the Mesolithic on different scales and with various theoretical perspectives and methodological approaches Mesolithic people were strongly connected to the sea with coastal areas vital for subsistence and communication across the water This anthology includes case studies from Scandinavia western Europe and the Baltic area presented by key international researchers Topics addressed include large scale analyses of the archaeological and geological development of coastal areas the exploration of coastal environments with interdisciplinary methods the discussion of the character of coastal settlements and of their possible networks social and economic practices along the coast as well as perceptions and cosmological aspects of coastal areas Together these topics and approaches contribute in an innovative way to the understanding of the complexity of topographically changing coastal areas as both border zones between land and sea and as connecting landscapes Providing novel insights into the study of the Mesolithic as well as coastal areas and landscapes in general the book is an important resource for researchers of the Mesolithic and coastal archaeology

Archaeology beyond Postmodernity Andrew M. Martin, 2013-07-19 In the last decade a new conception of culture has emerged in sociology out of the ashes of modernism and post modernism that has the potential to radically change how we think about cultural objects and groups in archaeology Archaeology beyond Postmodernity re evaluates current interpretive and methodological tools and adapts them to the new position Many examples are given from Western and indigenous sciences to illustrate this different understanding of science and culture In addition several case studies demonstrate how it can be applied to interpret historic and prehistoric cultures

The Oxford Handbook of the Archaeology of Death and Burial Sarah Tarlow, Liv Nilsson Stutz, 2013-06-06 This Handbook reviews the state of mortuary archaeology and its practice with forty four chapters focusing on the history of the discipline and its current scientific techniques and methods Written by leading scholars in the field it derives its examples and case studies from a wide range of time periods and geographical areas

Exploring Prehistoric Identity in Europe Victoria Ginn, Rebecca Enlander, Rebecca Crozier, 2014-03-19 Identity is relational and a construct and is expressed in a myriad of ways For example material culture and its pluralist meanings have been readily manipulated by humans in a prehistoric context in order to construct personal and group identities Artefacts were often from or reminiscent of far flung places and were used to demonstrate membership of an imagined regional or European community Earthworks frequently archive maximum visual impact through elaborate ramparts and entrances with the minimum amount of effort indicating that the construction of identities were as much in the eye of the perceiver as of the perceived Variations in domestic architectural style also demonstrate the malleability of identity and the prolonged intermittent use of particular places for specific functions indicates that the identity of place is just as important in our archaeological understanding as the identity of people By using a wide range of case studies both temporally and spatially these thought processes may be explored further and diachronic and geographic patterns in expressions of identity investigated

Between the Lines Kenneth Brophy, 2015-10-05 Reading Between the Lines The Neolithic Cursus Monuments of Scotland is the first systematic analysis of Scotland's cursus monuments and is written by one of the foremost scholars of the Neolithic in Scotland. Drawing on fifteen years of experience of cropmark interpretation as well as his involvement in several excavations of cursus monuments and contemporary sites, Kenneth Brophy uncovers some of the secrets of the Neolithic landscape. While outlining the physical characteristics of the cursus, this book also addresses the limitations of this kind of typological description when applied to monuments which varied so remarkably in terms of materiality and size. Moving beyond a morphological account, Brophy considers what can be said of this diverse group of sites and how they were actually built and used in prehistory in light of several decades of aerial reconnaissance and excavation in Scotland. Through a close study of the differences as well as the similarities between these structures, this book offers a nuanced account of cursus monuments, finally allowing this important monument type to be better understood and placed alongside others of the period. Offering exciting new ways of thinking about these enigmatic yet important monuments, Reading Between the Lines: The Neolithic Cursus Monuments of Scotland is an essential resource for students and specialists in British prehistory, providing an introduction to the Early Neolithic archaeology of lowland Scotland as well as a meditation on broader aspects of monumentality and architecture.

Reading the Past Ian Hodder, Scott Hutson, 2003-12-04 The third edition of this classic introduction to archaeological theory and method has been fully updated to address the burgeoning of theoretical debate throughout the discipline. Ian Hodder and Scott Hutson argue that archaeologists must bring to bear a variety of perspectives in the complex and uncertain task of constructing meaning from the past. While remaining centred on the importance of hermeneutics, agency and history, the authors explore cutting-edge developments in areas such as post-structuralism, neo-evolutionary theory and whole new branches of theory such as phenomenology. With the addition of two completely new chapters, the third edition of Reading the Past presents an authoritative state-of-the-art analysis of contemporary archaeological theory. Also including new material on feminist archaeology, historical approaches such as cultural history and theories of discourse, and signs, this book represents essential reading for any student or scholar with an interest in the past.

Biosphere to Lithosphere Terry O'Connor, 2016-09-12 Taphonomic studies are a major methodological advance the effects of which have been felt throughout archaeology. Zooarchaeologists and archaeobotanists were the first to realise how vital it was to study the entire process of how food enters the archaeological record and taphonomy brought to a close the era when the study of animal bones and plant remains from archaeological sites were regarded mainly as environmental indicators. This volume is indicative of recent developments in taphonomic studies; hugely diverse research areas are being explored, many of which would have been totally unforeseeable only a quarter of a century ago.
