Interpreting Womens Lives:

Interpreting Women's Lives Joy Webster Barbre, 1989-06-22 Interpreting Women's Lives offers rich insights into the ways that women's voices and life stories can inform scholarly research and expand our understanding of both the shared experience of gender and the profound differences among women. Publisher's description Telling Women's Lives Judy Long, 1999-05 For centuries the great man format and masculine discourse of biography and autobiography have eclipsed women. If we accept this history we remain ignorant of Lady Sarashina a Japanese woman of the Heian period whose book survives from the 11th century. We overlook Margaret Cavendish and Dame Julian two early English autobiographers. And we fail to consider sufficiently slave narratives oral histories or lesbian coming out stories. Telling Women's Lives assesses existing traditions of autobiography and biography in search of a method capable of conveying the distinctive content of women's lives while retaining the tenor of feminine subjectivity. Drawing on feminist research methodologies of the past two decades as well as anthropology and sociology Long paves the way for the formulation of an emergent feminist methodology for telling women's lives. This highly original study seeks to revise and recreate the genre so as to accommodate a feminine discourse narrator reader and subject. The messiness of women's lives the daily work and detail that men have programmatically excluded acquires new meaning as Long develops here an innovative theory of sociobiography.

Interpreting Life Patricia C. Burke, 2011-03-25 Interpreting Life depicts one Christian woman's struggle to determine her place in the home and church as the traditional roles of the 1950s gave way to the chaos created by the social movements of the 1960s and 1970s. Burke's lengthy journey brought her from a state of confusion to a conscious awareness of the effects of her cohort conservative religious beliefs and close relationships on her personal and spiritual development. From childhood she worshipped with a church where submission scriptures in the New Testament were taken literally and women were not allowed to participate in any public leadership roles such as leading prayers and songs teaching adults or preaching. As society changed and women gradually acquired leadership roles in other organizations these church practices became more stifling preventing many conservative women from using their God-given talents. Because of her marriage to a minister where she felt her family was living in a glass house it became exceedingly frustrating to adhere to traditional religious values. Throughout this process their marriage relationship was repeatedly challenged but their commitment to each other and the church helped them resolve their differences and work together to reinterpret women's roles in the church. Journal writing was the technique used to make sense of the contradictions and internal conflict experienced as this Christian woman attempted to remain faithful to her religious beliefs and yet develop to her full potential. Excerpts from over thirty years of writing reveals the strategies Burke employed to remain positive and productive as family and church priorities took precedent over her own dreams. Getting a Life Sidonie Smith, Julia Watson, 1996 Various encounters helped us transform what was originally just a response to a trendy 1980s phrase Get A life into the pointed yet heterogeneous engagement with everyday practices that we believe this collection represents Papers submitted for the session on the everyday uses of autobiography at the Modern Language Association's convention in 1992 enabled us to connect with scholars around the country
