Ending Spouse/Partner Abuse Robert Geffner,Carol Mantooth,1999-10-06 This clinician s manual and workbook were developed to provide alternatives in the efforts to reduce the national epidemic of spouse partner maltreatment Geffner and Mantooth describe a model incorporating several theories and approaches of psychotherapy while focusing on abuse as a primary issue The program and techniques have been used and improved for more than 15 years in programs across the country The clinician will receive a comprehensive intervention program that includes 26 weekly sessions that address how to initiate the foundations for a therapeutic relationship communicate and express feelings teach self management and assertiveness techniques discuss intimacy issues and implement a relapse prevention program Each session contains brief intervention techniques handouts and homework assignments The advantage of this approach is its flexibility Modifications to the order in which the sessions are conducted can be made by trained clinicians to fit the needs of their clients

Fragmented Intimacy Peter J. Adams,2007-12-20 I recall during my early years as a clinical psychologist being asked by hospital staff to speak with a 32 year old man addicted to alcohol who was being discharged following treatment for pancreatitis This had been his third admission for the same illness and hospital practitioners were exasperated by his choice to continue drinking despite being repeatedly told it would cause irreparable damage to his pancreas from which he would be unlikely to survive I met him in a side room on the ward He sat in his pyjamas in the corner of the room thin and ashen looking with a worried frown fixed across his face Our conversation was initially stilted and I was trying hard not to replicate the lectures and sermons he was likely to have already received from hospital staff As we talked I was able to piece together bits of information about his current circumstances he lived alone he was unemployed and his only family contact was with a brother who visited to check on him occasionally He started to relax into the conversation and then talked about his long struggles with alcohol his drinking had begun in his early teens it had provided him with confidence and friendships he had had some serious motor vehicle accidents he had tried to stop drinking but soon continued he had lost friends jobs and family relationships and in response he had increasingly sought intoxication as a refuge

Assessing Woman Battering in Mental Health Services
Edward W. Gondolf, 1998 Beyond a how to book Assessing Woman Battering in Mental Health Services discusses the issues underlying the identification and assessment of battered women and assists clinicians in providing an appropriate and safe response for them It presents ways to build collaboration that improves assessment and referrals and establishes a supportive environment that enhances disclosure of woman battering identifying potential strengths and further safety rather than increasing risks Concluding chapters consider issues involved in assessing women of different racial backgrounds and men who battered their female partners This timely book is directed to mental health practitioners and domestic violence workers as well as academics researchers and students in the helping professions

The Military Family James Martin, Leora Rosen, Linette Sparacino, 2000-07-30 Today there are more military family members than there are total uniformed service members Sixty percent of the military are married including more than eighty percent of all career status personnel and many have small children They come from diverse racial and ethnic backgrounds and they represent a wide variety of family types including single parents dual career military couples and families with eldercare responsibilities In an effort to cut costs many of the services utilized by military families are being privatized or outsourced to civilian service providers This guide is designed to benefit anyone who provides services to these families particularly those who may have little or no prior knowledge of the unique nature of military families and military family life This book contains research based information about the unique needs of military families across various duty related conditions as well as within the context of military career demands Its multi service focus addresses the provision of human services in both peace and wartime Topics include military spouse employment retirement issues family support during deployments the New Parent Support Program and the experiences of adult children of military parents The authors encourage an understanding of military community based programs and services and they offer the reader numerous resources for collaboration with the
