Interventions In Ethics S U N Y Series In Ethical Theory:

Interventions in Ethics D. Z. Phillips, 1992-08-17 There is a growing need for interventions in ethics to counteract the tendency to generalize about moral issues This book contains essays written between 1965 and 1990 which focus on the need to explore such issues as the nature of moral endeavor the request for a justification of moral endeavor the appeal to human flourishing the nature of the good life the nature of moral change and moral relativity The author argues his case in relation to the work of contemporary philosophers including G E M Anscombe Annette Baier Max Black Cora Diamond Ilham Dilman Philippa Foot Thomas Nagel Alasdair MacIntyre Bernard Williams and Peter Winch Interventions in Ethics Dewi

Zephaniah Phillips, 1992 Death and Finitude Sami Pihlström, 2016-09-21 Death and Finitude offers an examination and defense of a pragmatic transcendental anthropology applicable to the concepts of limit finitude and mortality that are constitutive of human life as we know it Sami Pihlström develops a special kind of philosophical anthropology a pragmatic yet transcendental examination of the human condition that interprets what is worth preserving in the tradition of transcendental philosophy in such a manner that this unusual combination will crucially enrich our understanding of a human problem we all share mortality In some sense all serious philosophy inevitably reflects on the human condition and is thus philosophical anthropology broadly conceived There can hardly be any more serious problem concerning the human condition than the problem of death Yet mainstream analytic contributions to the philosophy of death usually addresses death in general and it is far from obvious that such contributions are philosophically relevant in the sense of addressing the agony of an individual human being trying to understand their own mortal condition Continental philosophy of death may be frustrating in a different sense as it often fails to be conceptually as clear and argumentatively as rigorous as the analytic literature Claiming to address my being toward death such contributions may also fail to speak to the mortal individual if they end up in endless pseudo philosophical jargon It is against this background of frustration that Death and Finitude contributes to humanity's ongoing reflections on death dying and mortality from a pragmatist yet transcendental perspective seeking to accommodate these topics within a broader philosophical anthropology The book is primarily intended for academic philosophers but the potential readership includes not only scholars but also both graduate students and advanced undergraduates as well as general educated readers It is relevant to the concerns of philosophers specializing in transcendental philosophy philosophical anthropology pragmatism Wittgenstein and the philosophy of religion As the book may be said to be an attempt to philosophize historically it is in principle of interest to both systematically and historically oriented philosophers and students Sport, Medicine, Ethics Mike McNamee, 2014-04-16 The ethics of sports medicine is an important emerging area within biomedical ethics The professionalization of medical support services in sport and continuing debates around issues such as performance enhancing technologies or the health and welfare of athletes mean that all practitioners in sport as well as researchers with an interest in sports ethics need to develop a clear understanding of the ethical aspects of the sport medicine nexus This timely collection of articles explores the conceptual and practical issues that shape and define ethics in sports medicine Examining central topics such as consent confidentiality pain doping and genetic technology this book establishes an important baseline for future academic and professional work in this area

Resources in Education ,1999-10 Subject Guide to Books in Print ,2001 Adult Social Care Ferguson, Iain,Lavalette, Michael,2013-10-23 Adult social care in Britain has been at the centre of much media and public attention in recent years Revelations of horrific abuse in learning disability settings the collapse of major private care home providers abject failures of inspection and regulation and uncertainty over how long term care of older people should be funded have all given rise to serious public concern In this short form book part of the Critical and Radical Debates in Social Work series Iain Ferguson and Michael Lavalette give an historical overview of adult social care The roots of the current crisis are located in the under valuing of older people and adults with disabilities and in the marketisation of social care over the past two decades The authors critically examine recent developments in social work with adults including the personalisation agenda and the prospects for adult social care and social work in a context of seemingly never ending austerity Tragic Thoughts at the End of Philosophy Gerald L. Bruns,1999-07-21 In this text Bruns investigates the recent phenomenon of philosophers taking an interest in literature and literary theory The Moral Warrior Martin L. Cook, 2010-03-10 For the first time in history the capabilities of the U S military far outstrip those of any potential rival either singly or collectively and this reality raises fundamental questions about its role nature and conduct The Moral Warrior explores a wide range of ethical issues regarding the nature and purpose of voluntary military service the moral meaning of the unique military power of the United States in the contemporary world and the moral challenges posed by the war on terrorism Books in Print, 1994 Agency and Ethics Anthony F. Lang, 2002-01-01 Explains why military interventions with humanitarian goals consistently fail Deleuze and Guattari's Immanent Ethics Tamsin Lorraine, 2011-08-01 In Deleuze and Guattari's Immanent Ethics Tamsin Lorraine focuses on the pragmatic implications of Deleuze and Guattari's work for human beings struggling to live ethical lives Her bold alignment of Deleuze and Guattari's project with the feminist and phenomenological projects of grounding human action in lived experience provides an accessible introduction to their work Lorraine characterizes Deleuze and Guattari's nonfoundational approach to ethics in terms of a notion of power that comes into skillful confluence with the multiple forces of life and an immanent principle of flourishing while their conception of philosophical thought is portrayed as an intervention in the ongoing movement of life that she enacts in her own exploration of their ideas She contends that Deleuze and Guattari advocate unfolding the potential of our becoming in ways that enhance our participation in the creative evolution of life and she characterizes forms of subjectivity and cultural practice that could support such evolution By means of her lucid reading taken through the lens of feminist philosophy Lorraine is not only able to present clearly Deleuze and Guattari's project but also an intriguing elaboration of some of the project's practical implications for novel approaches to contemporary problems in philosophy feminism cultural theory and human living
