Modernist Short Fiction by Women Claire Drewery, 2016-04-15 Taking on the neglected issue of the short story's relationship to literary Modernism Claire Drewery examines works by Katherine Mansfield Dorothy Richardson May Sinclair and Virginia Woolf Drewery argues that the short story as a genre is preoccupied with transgressing boundaries and thus offers an ideal platform from which to examine the Modernist fascination with the liminal Embodying both liberation and restriction liminal spaces on the one hand enable challenges to traditional cultural and personal identities while on the other hand they entail the inevitable negative consequences of occupying the position of the outsider marginality psychosis and death Mansfield Richardson Sinclair and Woolf all exploit this paradox in their short fiction which typically explores literal and psychological borderline states that are resistant to rational analysis Thus their short stories offered these authors an opportunity to represent the borders of unconsciousness and to articulate meaning while also conveying a sense of that which is unsayable Through their concern with liminality Drewery shows these writers contribute significantly to the Modernist aesthetic that interrogates identity the construction of the self and the relationship between the individual and society

Milton's Places of Hope Mary C. Fenton, 2017-03-02 In early modern culture and in Milton's poetry and prose this book argues the concept of hope is intrinsically connected with place and land Mary Fenton analyzes how Milton sees hope as bound both to the spiritual and the material the internal self and the external world Hope as Fenton demonstrates comes from commitment to literal places such as the land ideological places such as the nation and sacred interior places such as the human soul Drawing on an array of materials from the seventeenth century including emblems legal treatises political pamphlets and prayer manuals Fenton sheds light on Milton's ideas about personal and national identity and where people should place their sense of power and responsibility Milton's politics and where he thought the English nation was and where it should be heading and finally Milton's theology and how individuals relate to God

Education Reform in China Janette Ryan, 2013-07-03 Over the past decade there has been radical reform at all levels of China's education system as it attempts to meet changing economic and social needs and aspirations Changes have been made to pedagogy and teacher professional learning and also to the curriculum both at the basic education level from kindergarten to year 12 and at the higher education level This book focuses on reform at the early childhood primary and secondary levels and is the companion book to China's Higher Education

Reform and Internationalisation which covers reform at the higher education level Education Reform in China outlines the systematic transformation that has occurred of school curriculum goals structure and content teaching and learning approaches and assessment and administrative structures including the increasing devolvement of control from the centre to provincial district and school levels As well as illustrating the changes that are occurring within classrooms it demonstrates the continuity of cultural and educational ideas and values in the midst of these changes showing that reform does not just involve the adoption of foreign ideas but builds on and even resurrects traditional Chinese educational values Importantly it considers how exchanges of people and ideas can contribute to new ways of working between Western and Chinese educational systems
