A Journey to Freedom Franco Imoda,2000 Can psychology and religion engage in constructive dialogue Has psychology a contribution to make in Christian formation These are some of the issues addressed in this volume marking 25 years of the Institute of Psychology of the Gregorian University The twenty articles which make up the work offer essential insights into how psychology and religion can meet and interact constructively at the level of theory and of practice These insights are presented in the context of an overall Christian anthropology which continues to develop and to further refine its practical applications The contributions are divided into four sections theory and method dialogue between psychology and other disciplines applications in different cultures and concrete experiences of applying a psychologically informed Christian anthropology in the educational setting The balanced approach presented in this work makes it both a serious instrument of study and a valuable point of reference for the educator Its constant reference to a Christian conception of the person will help avoid short sighted pragmatism

Reflections on the Journey of Faith. Clive William Ayre,2022-11-01 In a world not attuned to waiting and that frequently desires instant answers and achievement it is important sometimes to stop and reflect on the journey we have embarked upon And life is a journey The life of faith is a journey and it is one that we share with so many others That is important when we think of the journey as one that includes both gift and calling challenge and encouragement It is obviously a two way engagement As in the first volume the reflections in this book broadly follow the Christian year and are designed to encourage and challenge readers in their shared faith journey It is based on the conviction that where faith and life intersect God is to be found and we are called to reflect the divine image
