with a renewed heart peace and hope for the future Joy Comes in the Mourning reminds you that the Lord is waiting for you to call out His name He can bring you joy no matter how sad and depressed you are He can bring you peace no matter how stressed and worried you are He can bring you hope no matter how dark tomorrow seems He loves you and wants to help you find your joy in the mourning Joy in the Mourning Ruby Wiebe,2016 The Morning After Mourning Vickie Martin RN BSN,2020-01-15 Grief is very hard work and the worst grief is your own After a devastating loss I put my grief work on hold until I thought there would be a more convenient season I had two grieving teenagers worked 120 hours every two weeks and I was going to school to get my BSN in nursing When I least expected it the impact of the loss overwhelmed me If something triggered me I would burst into tears during the most inopportune times Grief work is a step by step process and it can not be rushed The presence of loved ones and friends helped It was almost easier if no words were spoken I was reminded of Job s comforters The most comforting friend was the one who remained present with him and said nothing To self soothe I read I prayed I wept and I searched the scriptures as well as any information that would help me through the grieving process It was during my searching both scriptures and information that brought me the most relief Jesus had truly sent His Comforter which I was so grateful for It was during those very difficult hours that the Holy Spirit prompted me to write a handbook on how to process and move through the grieving process Grief work cannot be ignored Denial is a functional coping strategy for a short period of time to get important things done but it truly can not be put off for long

Joy in the Mourning Beth Rogers,2001-04-14 Joy Shaw is a widow striving to find peace for herself and her three children in the wake of her husband s tragic death Jack and Carolyn Curtis face a battle with her cancer so fierce that no cure is affecting its claim on her life It is affecting the lives of their two daughters who are forced to watch helplessly as disease destroys their sense of security Where is God when prayers seem to go unanswered and belief is shaken like a cobweb being battered by the wind Can Joy cling to her faith Can Jack and Carolyn find a reason to have any at all God is there There may not always be an answer that seems to make sense but there always is a hope a reason to believe a strength to move ahead And God is behind the tentative gestures of friendship between two women in need He is quietly and gently healing spirits offering His peace and comfort through testing and trials And He in His mercy always makes a way for healing trust and love Joy in the Mourning Barbara Kompik,2018-07-03 This book is a journey of grief in the death of my 31 year old son of three strains of sepsis last Christmas But in the midst of my grief I find the joy that only Jesus can give and that is in the gift of love It is not in receiving love but giving my unique love to each of my family members and to those who are led into my life Joy Comes with the Mourning Janis Miller,2024-03-08 Can one truly traverse the bumpy painful road of grief recovery by studying runaway pigs dead horses roller skating librarians and an addiction to Hostess CupCakes As an innovative approach to grief recovery Joy Comes with the Mourning a new book by Janis Shanahan Miller does just that Miller shares hilarious anecdotal stories of her life that lead to particular insights into the healing process after loss and a deeper relationship with God in Christ After losing her husband of fifty years to a tragic car accident the author read numerous books on the grieving process books which often did more to deepen her depression and sorrow and that were frequently written by people who had not suffered the losses about which they had written After six months of reading praying and willing herself to achieve a better frame of mind she made the decision to write a book about losses of all kinds and their accompanying grief but from the aspect of joy rather than sorrow The author s reliance on God s guidance is in every page displaying the truths she has learned The judges at the 2021 Asheville Christian Writers Conference described Joy Comes with the Mourning this way after presenting Miller with one of two Sparrow Awards for non fiction This is such a great way to come at the grieving process It is beautifully written and lives up to its title it s a fresh voice speaking eloquently yet authoritatively on a sensitive subject It is hoped that anyone who selects Joy Comes with the Mourning will find the enjoyment of good storytelling and inspiration forged by God s presence in the life of the author The stories of lives touched by loss will eventually come to all believer and non believer alike but Joy Comes with the Mourning can lead the way to a happily ever after ending Addiction to Hostess CupCakes is purely optional Joy Comes in the Mourning James E. McReynolds, 2020-02 Grief is done differently by every person It is personal My brother had been suffering for many years with cancers Ignoring grief leads to numbers of coping problems Grief comes because we love We are not released from grief Being rich or poor makes no difference Being gifted and successful in life does not matter All the 7 5 billion people living on earth today will know grief David s death and all my losses in life have been tender times No other human can understand Our brothers or sisters each grieve differently Spouses grieve in differing ways throughout the world upon the death of their partner Because each loss is unique we need to seek the help of a friend with gifts in grief counseling When I went through my times of grieving I sought someone who had had similar losses to help me through this dark journey I could not handle recently losing my parents losing my brother David and losing feelings of worth being insignificant unloved and unwanted by those with whom I wanted to continue sharing the joy of the Lord One of the gifts David left was a thick book on the history of the McReynolds family We are a part of everyone who lived with or without our genes We will understand this in the Next Place James E McReynolds is a preacher teacher author coach and retreat leader who shares the joy of the Lord He is an ordained minister in the Christian Church Disciples of Christ He lives in Elmwood Nebraska JOY COMES IN THE MOURNING.
