Water Treatment Unit Processes David W. Hendricks, 2018-10-03 The unit process approach common in the field of chemical engineering was introduced about 1962 to the field of environmental engineering An understanding of unit processes is the foundation for continued learning and for designing treatment systems The time is ripe for a new textbook that delineates the role of unit process principles in environmental engineering Suitable for a two semester course Water Treatment Unit Processes Physical and Chemical provides the grounding in the underlying principles of each unit process that students need in order to link theory to practice

Bridging the gap between scientific principles and engineering practice the book covers approaches that are common to all unit processes as well as principles that characterize each unit process Integrating theory into algorithms for practice Professor Hendricks emphasizes the fundamentals using simple explanations and avoiding models that are too complex mathematically allowing students to assimilate principles without getting sidelined by excess calculations Applications of unit processes principles are illustrated by example problems in each chapter Student problems are provided at the end of each chapter the solutions manual can be downloaded from the CRC Press Web site Excel spreadsheets are integrated into the text as tables designated by a CD prefix Certain spreadsheets illustrate the idea of scenarios that emphasize the idea that design solutions depend upon assumptions and the interactions between design variables The spreadsheets can be downloaded from the CRC web site The book has been designed so that each unit process topic is self contained with sidebars and examples throughout the text Each chapter has subheadings so that students can scan the pages and identify important topics with little effort Problems references and a glossary are found at the end of each chapter Most chapters contain downloadable Excel spreadsheets integrated into the text and appendices with additional information Appendices at the end of the book provide useful reference material on various topics that support the text This design allows students at different levels to easily navigate through the book and professors to assign pertinent sections in the order they prefer The book gives your students an understanding of the broader aspects of one of the core areas of the environmental engineering curriculum and knowledge important for the design of treatment systems

Green Building Costs Ming Hu,2023-08-08 Sustainability has become a driver of innovation in the built environment but the affordability of sustainable building remains a significant challenge This book takes a critical view of the real cost of green building It provides readers with a non biased evaluation based on empirical construction cost data and sheds light on the affordability of sustainable buildings Chapters are presented in three parts The first part lays the foundation to demystify the perception of green buildings being expensive to construct by providing empirical evidence that green buildings even net zero buildings are not necessarily more expensive to build than conventional buildings The second part presents empirical evidence common misperceptions of a higher green building construction cost are debunked The author offers a new framework to explain the construction cost drivers and differences of sustainable buildings the project characteristics and project team characteristics human factors The third part directs the readers attention to the important role that human factors play in controlling and reducing construction costs with a focus on the project design team A lack of skills expertise and experience during the design phase is likely to be the biggest contributor to higher construction costs Empirical analysis case studies on LEED certified buildings and interviews with project teams are used to present a pathway to more affordable green building at the end This will be a crucial resource for students and professionals in architecture engineering construction management and planning and energy policy
