International Labour Standards and Platform Work Mathias Wouters, 2021-11-25 Platform work the matching of the supply of and demand for paid labour through an online platform often depends on workers who operate in a grey area between the archetype of an employee and a self employed worker This important book explores the utility of the International Labour Organization s existing standards in governing this phenomenon It indicates that despite their relevance many standards have little or no impact The standards apply to the issue but they fail to connect with it The author shows how three ILO conventions the Home Work Convention 1996 No 177 the Private Employment Agencies Convention 1997 No 181 and the Domestic Workers Convention 2011 No 189 can be revitalised to have an impact on the platform work debate In the course of the analysis he responds in depth to such questions as the following What are digital labour platforms What does decent work mean Did the ILO centenary fundamentally change anything What is the link between private employment services and platform work How do crowdworkers relate to homeworkers and teleworkers Are platform workers engaged in domestic work What form could a future ILO standard on platform work take Given that the ILO plans to start discussions on a potential future standard for platform work in 2022 this book will prove very useful in highlighting the issues and standards that such discussions should consider Research has shown that the techniques and tools of the platform economy have spread far beyond gig work resulting in widespread gigification and restructuring of workplace behaviours and relationships jobs and communities across the world For this and other reasons including the book s detailed analysis of issues not addressed elsewhere labour lawyers in house counsel researchers and policymakers will gain valuable insight into what decent work in the platform economy would require thus greatly broadening the discussion on this difficult to regulate phenomenon

When and how does this lead to national and or transnational migration We need to examine the ways in which migration is cut across and impacts on the generation of racism and xenophobia in the west The issue of remittances by migrants to the developing nations needs careful study as does the controversial issue of brain drain versus brain gain through migration The growing importance of trafficking for forced labour has now been taken up by various international bodies but is it the new normality or simply an unfortunate side effect of globalisation to be overcome through legislation Migration is becoming increasingly gendered in its composition and flows but also in the receiving countries where men and women do very different jobs We can predict the increasing racialization and gendering of migration but how will the state and society respond to these shifts This book was published as a special issue of Third World Quarterly
