Health Care For An Aging Population:

Health Care for an Aging Population Chris Hackler, 1994-01-01 Pivoting on Daniel Callahan's proposal to withhold publicly funded life prolonging medical care from the very old in his 1989 Setting Limits Medical Goals in an Aging Society 14 essays consider the health care crisis looming early in the next century as the baby boomers reach retirement age They discuss the role of the aged in society what the old and young deserve of each other the source of medical cost increases implications of rationing according to age and proposals for a system that will address both immediate problems and long term conditions Annotation copyright by Book News Inc Portland OR

The Aging Population in the Twenty-First Century National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Commission on Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Committee on National Statistics, Panel on Statistics for an Aging Population, 1988-02-01 It is not news that each of us grows old What is relatively new however is that the average age of the American population is increasing More and better information is required to assess plan for and meet the needs of a graying population The Aging Population in the Twenty First Century examines social economic and demographic changes among the aged as well as many health related topics health promotion and disease prevention quality of life health care system financing and use and the quality of care especially long term care Recommendations for increasing and improving the data available as well as for ensuring timely access to them are also included

Healthcare for an Ageing Population focuses on the conditions and health challenges likely to be encountered in persons of 45 and older It provides a comprehensive management approach that draws on conventional and complementary medicine and offers patient information sheets that can be readily distributed to the patient by busy practitioners The book is divided into two sections The first section looks at the ageing process and explores the repercussions of advancing age on the quality of life It looks at how reduced reserves can lead to various dysfunctions that potentially compromise well being in old age The emphasis moves to advice on how to reduce both risk of disease and its complications Presented in a user friendly style with clinical scenarios points to ponder and clinical challenges this book is evidence based and targets the most important problems and challenges of ageing

Illness and Health Services in an

Aging Population United States. Public Health Service, 1952 Healthcare Transitions and the Aging Population Dianne Morrow Ross, 2008 Healthcare services for the aging population in the United States are a complex configuration of acute healthcare organizations and post acute nursing facilities home healthcare and community based services The system encompasses all services that imply the need for clinical medical or professional judgment Baldrige National Quality Program 2006 Most Americans believe the system exists to provide preventive services management for chronic conditions and health care services to meet the needs of the people National Committee for Quality Assurance NCQA 2004 However the healthcare delivery system is fragmented across a broad array of settings Coleman Smith Frank Min Parry Kramer 2004 plagued by gaps in quality of care and does not provide optimal care to the majority of American citizens NCQA 2004 As a result national efforts are focused on the identification of quality indicators performance measures and the driving need for consensus standards across a multiplicity of providers payers and stakeholders The overarching focus of this effort is to bridge the gaps in health care quality and reduce documented disparities for vulnerable populations National Quality Forum 2004 Healthcare transitions occur as patients receive a broad range of services across a multiplicity of providers payers and settings Aging patients 65 are most vulnerable during these transitions A poorly executed transition can result in complications for the patient duplication of tests and services discharge delays increased lengths of stay early readmissions to the acute care setting frustration for families and care givers and dissatisfaction with overall services Management of care and accountability across settings is limited and patients are falling through the cracks in the foundation of the healthcare system Covinsky 2003 The intent of this research was to examine healthcare transitions for patients 65 admitted to a large acute healthcare system and to identify measurable quality indicators for an innovative delivery model designed to optimize early discharge from the hospital through rapid rehabilitation This was a quasi experimental cross sectional design measured at the patient level The research included a total sample of 250 patients representing both the intervention and the control group The intervention group consisted of 100 patients who were rapidly discharged to a transitional care facility in the community and 150 patients randomly selected to a control group that did not transition to rapid rehabilitation The groups were matched as closely as possible by age gender race primary diagnoses and the complexity of case Inefficiency was measured by 3 indicators 1 length of stay 2 total expenses before contractual allowances and 3 discharge delays from the hospital Ineffectiveness was measured by 3 indicators 1 readmission within 30 days 2 patient safety with falls serving as the proxy and 3 overall patient satisfaction Descriptive analysis was performed utilizing SPSS 15.0 Path analysis was method of choice for data analysis and AMOS 7.0 was utilized for the measurement model Descriptive analysis found a broad range of diagnosis related groups across 183 women and 67 men with a mean age of 80 for both groups Initial analysis found the intervention group had a mean length of stay of 9.17 days and experienced 20 readmissions The control group had a mean length of stay of 6.77 days and 30 readmissions The statistical analysis suggested length of stay and cost of healthcare services are statistically significant indicators at the 0.05 or lower level and that patient safety has the potential to be developed as an indicator for effective outcomes. The identification of quality indicators, measurement of efficiency and effectiveness, and establishing predictors for successful healthcare transitions is dependent on the quality and integrity of data abstracted from hospital information systems, accuracy of information in patient records, and the consensus of standards and definitions across a multiplicity of stakeholders. Further research and collaboration is necessary to ensure that patient transition to innovative care programs such as rapid rehabilitation is based on well-defined patient selection criteria. The intent of the methodologies and quality indicators explored in this research supports the increasing need to ensure that inferences and quality measurements drawn from healthcare information is based on valid, reliable, and well-defined data sources. Pan, Fergusson, Schweitzer, Hebert, 2005. This research suggests hospitals are making steady progress to overcome challenges to safe quality health services as outlined by the Institute of Medicine, 2001, for system redesign but finds specific implications for hospital leadership. There is a need to thread evidence-based practice initiatives into hospital and clinical structures to accommodate new delivery models, processes, and case management. Health services information needs to be housed in a central repository or data warehouse to increase transparency of reportable information across systems and to ensure that valid and reliable information is utilized to draw inferences about performance of hospital systems. Selden, Sowa, 2004, and that quality measurements are established to ensure a scientific foundation for the management of healthcare services. Wan, 2002.

Preparing for Better Health and Health Care for an Aging Population John W. Rowe, Lisa Berkman, Linda Fried, Terry Fulmer, James Jackson, Mary Naylor, William Novelli, Jay Olshansky, Robyn Stone, 2016. The proportion of the US population over 65 years old is increasing dramatically, and the group over 85 years old, the oldest old, is the most rapidly growing segment. People who survive into higher ages in America, which itself is an aging society, face a suite of competing forces that will yield healthy life extension for some and life extension accompanied by notable increases in frailty and disability for many. We spend more for worse outcomes than many if not all other developed countries, including care for older persons. Looking forward, our health care system is unprepared to provide the medical and support services needed for previously unimagined numbers of sick older persons, and we are not investing in keeping people healthy into their highest ages. This paper summarizes the opportunities for valuable policy advances in several important spheres that are central to the health and well-being of older persons.
