Shadowing the White Man's Burden Gretchen Murphy, 2010-05-01 During the height of 19th century imperialism Rudyard Kipling published his famous poem The White Man s Burden While some of his American readers argued that the poem served as justification for imperialist practices others saw Kipling s satirical talents at work and read it as condemnation Gretchen Murphy explores this tension embedded in the notion of the white man s burden to create a new historical frame for understanding race and literature in America Shadowing the White Man s Burden maintains that literature symptomized and channeled anxiety about the racial components of the U S world mission while also providing a potentially powerful medium for multiethnic authors interested in redrawing global color lines Through a range of archival materials from literary reviews to diplomatic records to ethnological treatises Murphy identifies a common theme in the writings of African Asian and Native American authors who exploited anxiety about race and national identity through narratives about a multiracial U S empire Shadowing the White Man s Burden situates American literature in the context of broader race relations and provides a compelling analysis of the way in which literature came to define and shape racial attitudes for the next century

Canadian Women in Print, 1750-1918 Carole Gerson, 2011-05-24 Canadian Women in Print 1750 1918 is the first historical examination of women s engagement with multiple aspects of print over some two hundred years from the settlers who wrote diaries and letters to the New Women who argued for ballots and equal rights. Considering women's published writing as an intervention in the public sphere of national and material print culture, this book uses approaches from book history to address the working and living conditions of women who wrote in many genres and for many reasons. This study situates English Canadian authors within an extensive framework that includes francophone writers as well as women's work as compositors, bookbinders, and interveners in public access to print. Literary authorship is shown to be one point on a spectrum that ranges from missionary writing, temperance advocacy, and educational texts to journalism and travel accounts by New Woman adventurers. Familiar figures such as Susanna Moodie, L. M. Montgomery, Nellie McClung, Pauline Johnson, and Sara Jeannette Duncan are contextualized by writers whose names are less well known, such as Madge Macbeth and Agnes Laut, and by many others whose writings and biographies have vanished into the recesses of history. Readers will learn of the surprising range of writing and publishing performed by early Canadian women under various ideological, biographical, and cultural motivations and circumstances. Some expressed reluctance while others eagerly sought literary careers. Together they did much more to shape Canada's cultural history than has heretofore been recognized.
