Coastal Sedimentary Environments R.A. Jr. Davis, 2012-12-06 Richard A Davis The zone where land and sea meet is composed of a variety of complex environments The coastal areas of the world contain a large percentage of its population and are therefore of extreme economic importance Industrial residential and recreational developments as well as large urban complexes occupy much of the coastal margin of most highly developed countries Undoubtedly future expansion in many undeveloped maritime countries will also be concentrated on coastal areas Accompanying our occupation of coasts in this age of technology is a dependence on coastal environments for transportation food water defense and recreation In order to utilize the coastal zone to its capacity and yet not plunder its resources we must have extensive knowledge of the complex environments contained along the coasts The many environments within the coastal zone include bays estuaries deltas marshes dunes and beaches A tremendously broad range of conditions is represented by these environments Salinity may range from essentially fresh water in estuaries such as along the east coast of the United States to extreme hypersaline lagoons such as Laguna Madre in Texas Coastal environments may be in excess of a hundred meters deep fjords or may extend several meters above sea level in the form of dunes Some coastal environments are well protected and are not subjected to high physical energy except for occasional storms whereas beaches and tidal inlets are continuously modified by waves and currents Library of Congress Catalog Library of Congress, 1970 Advances in Archaeological Method and Theory Michael B Schiffer, 2014-06-30 Advances in Archaeological Method and Theory Volume 11 is a collection of papers that discusses world systems theory modeling interregional interaction in prehistory and the archaeological analysis of ceramics Some papers review dating and weathering of inorganic materials strategies for paleo environmental reconstruction as well as deposits and depositional events One paper reviews the Old World state formation that occurred in West Asia during the fourth and third millennia B C Another paper examines the role of interactions among societies in the process of local social change and the need for archaeologists to develop a framework in which to analyze intersocietal interaction processes The presence of items such as ceramics is associated directly to factors of availability functions economic values or ethnic affiliation As an example one paper cites the use and misuse of English and American ceramics in archaeological analysis in identifying cultural patterns and human behavior Another paper notes that each biological or mechanical agent of transport and deposition has its own respective attributes on a deposit where the attributes of sedimentary particles on the deposit can be defined From such definitions the archaeologists can make observations and
