Gendering Peace in Europe c. 1880-2000 Julie V. Gottlieb, Gaynor Johnson, 2022-04-27 This book examines the connection between notions of gender diplomacy society and peacemaking in the period c 1880 to the mid to late twentieth century The chapters in this volume place gender history at the interface with international history and international relations They explore a wide variety of themes and issues within the British and European context especially notions of gender identity the politics and culture of women's suffrage in the early part of the twentieth century and the role gender played in the formulation and execution of British foreign policy The book also breaks new ground by attempting to gender diplomacy Further it revisits the popular view that women were connected with the peace movements that grew up after the First World War because the notion of peace was associated with stereotypical female traits such as the rejection of violence and the nurturing rather than destruction of humankind The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the journal Diplomacy and Statecraft

Jewish Quarterly, 2001 The Jewish Quarterly, 1953 The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells, 2001 Comparative Port History of Rotterdam and Antwerp (1880-2000) Ferry de Goey, 2004 Comparative port history is often preached but seldom practiced This volume compares the development of Rotterdam and Antwerp in the period 1880-2000. Because of their geographical proximity these European ports have a long history of intense rivalry. In order to attract new cargo flows port dues and cargo handling costs were regarded as vital instruments but the volume qualifies the importance of pricing as a competitive instrument and questions the common typologies of Rotterdam and Antwerp. Using new methods and theories and employing an extensive recently constructed database the book presents a fresh look at an old topic. This volume contains contributions of both Belgian and Dutch authors.

Evangelizing the Chosen People Yaakov Ariel, 2003-06-19 With this book Yaakov Ariel offers the first comprehensive history of Protestant evangelization of Jews in America to the present day Based on unprecedented research in missionary archives as well as Jewish writings the book analyzes the theology and activities of both the missions and the converts and describes the reactions of the Jewish community which in turn helped to shape the evangelical activity directed toward it Ariel delineates three successive waves of evangelism the first directed toward poor Jewish immigrants the second toward American born Jews trying to assimilate and the third toward Jewish baby boomers influenced by the counterculture of the Vietnam War era After World War II the missionary impulse became almost exclusively the realm of conservative evangelicals as the more liberal segments of American Christianity took the path of interfaith dialogue As Ariel shows these missionary efforts have profoundly influenced Christian Jewish relations Jews have seen the missionary movement as a continuation of attempts to delegitimize Judaism and to do away with Jews through assimilation or annihilation But to conservative evangelical Christians who support the State of Israel evangelizing Jews is a manifestation of goodwill toward them

Strategies for Water Heritage Carola Hein,2019-10-18 This Open Access book building on research initiated by scholars from the Leiden Delft Erasmus Centre for Global Heritage and Development CHGD and ICOMOS Netherlands presents multidisciplinary research that connects water to heritage Through twenty one chapters it explores landscapes cities engineering structures and buildings from around the world It describes how people have actively shaped the course form and function of water for human settlement and the development of civilizations establishing socio economic structures policies and cultures a rich world of narratives laws and practices and an extensive network of infrastructure buildings and urban form The book is organized in five thematic sections that link practices of the past to the design of the present and visions of the future part I discusses drinking water management part II addresses water use in agriculture part III explores water management for land reclamation and defense part IV examines river and coastal planning and part V focuses on port cities and waterfront regeneration Today the many complex systems of the past are necessarily the basis for new systems that both preserve the past and manage water today policy makers and designers can work together to recognize and build on the traditional knowledge and skills that old structure embody This book argues that there is a need for a common agenda and an integrated policy that addresses the preservation transformation and adaptive reuse of historic water related structures Throughout it imagines how such efforts will help us develop sustainable futures for cities landscapes and bodies of water School Reform, Corporate Style Dorothy Shipps,2006 Like other big city school systems Chicago s has been repeatedly reformed over the last century Yet its schools have fallen far short of citizens expectations and left a gap between the performances of white and minority students Many blame the educational establishment for resisting change Other critics argue that reform occurs too often still others claim it comes not often enough Dorothy Shipps reappraises the tumultuous history of educational progress in Chicago revealing that the persistent lack of improvement is due not to the extent but rather the type of reform Throughout the twentieth century managerial reorganizations initiated by the business community repeatedly altered the governance structure of schools as well as the relationships of teachers to children and parents but brought little improvement while other more promising reform models were either resisted or crowded out Shipps chronicles how Chicago s corporate actors led abetted or restrained nearly every attempt to transform the city s school system then asks whether schools might be better reformed by others To show why city schools have failed urban children so badly she traces Chicago's reform history over four political eras revealing how corporate power was instrumental in designing and revamping the system Her narrative encompasses the formative era of 1880-1930 when teachers unions moderated business plans previously unexplored business activism from 1930 to 1980 when civil rights dominated school reform and the decentralization of the 1980s She also covers the uneasy cooperation among business associations in the 1990s to install the mayor as head of the school system a governing regime now challenged by privatization advocates Business people may be too wedded to a stunted view of educators to forge a productive partnership for change Unionized teachers bridle at the second class status accorded them by managers If reform is to reach deeply into classrooms Shipps concludes it might well require a new coalition of teachers unions and parents to create a fresh agenda that supersedes corporate interests This study clearly shows that in Chicago as elsewhere urban schooling is intertwined with politics and power By reviewing more than a century of corporate efforts to make education work Shipps makes a strong case that it's high time to look elsewhere perhaps to educators themselves for new leadership Formative Years Alexandra
