Helping Your Child Learn Science DIANE Publishing Company,1994 Intended to help you make the most of your child's natural curiosity Suggests ways you can interest your children from about 3 to 10 years old in science Includes basic information about science a sampling of activities for children to do some alone some with supervision in both the home and the community Also includes an appendix with practical tips to encourage schools to develop good science programs a brief description of 9 scientific concepts and a list of recommended science books and magazines Helping Your Child Learn Science Nancy Paulu,Margery Martin,1991 Helping Your Child Learn Science Nancy Paulu,Margery Martin,1991

Helping Your Child Learn Science Nancy Paulu,Margery Martin,1992 One in the Helping Your Child series to assist parents in helping their children learn Includes activities and science projects Helping Your Child Learn Science U. S. Department Education,Office of and Outreach,2013-10 Why is the sky blue Why do things fall to the ground How do seeds grow What makes the sound and music Where do mountains come from Young children ask their parents hundreds of questions like these In search of answers we use science to both enlighten and delight Being scientific involves being curious observing asking how things happen and learning how to find the answers Curiosity is natural to children but they need help understanding how to make sense of what they see and to relate their observations to their existing ideas and understandings This is why parental involvement is so important in children's science education When we encourage children to ask questions make predictions offer explanations and explore in a safe environment we lend them the kind of support that they need to become successful science students and scientific thinkers As a parent you don't have to be a scientist or have a college degree to help your child learn science What's far more important than being able to give a technical explanation of how a telescope works is your willingness to nurture your child's natural curiosity by taking the time to observe and learn together Science happens all around us every day and you have endless opportunities to invite your child into the wonders of science Without expensive chemistry sets equipment or kits a child can be introduced easily to the natural world and encouraged to observe what goes on in that world When you least expect it a moment for learning will occur A bit of ice cream drops on the sidewalk and ants appear some cups float and some sink when you're washing dishes static electricity makes your hair stand on end when you put on a sweater Through the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 President George W. Bush has made clear his commitment to the goals of raising standards of achievement for all children and of providing all children with highly qualified teachers and with instruction that is based on scientific research Helping Your Child Learn Science is part of the president's efforts to provide parents with the latest research and practical information designed to support children's learning at home at school and in the community It reflects the importance of inquiry processes and content in science achievement as described in the National Science Education Standards released in 1996 by the National Research Council of the National Academy of Sciences This publication includes a range of activities for families with children from preschool age through grade 5 The activities use materials found in your home and make learning experiences out of everyday routines The activities are designed for you to have fun with your child while developing and reinforcing science skills We hope you and your child will enjoy the activities suggested in this publication and develop many more of your own Helping Your Child Learn Science ,2005 Helping Your Child Succeed in School Dorothy Rich,1992 Teaching school survival skills for young children emphasis on a successful school experience Includes information for parents and hands on lessons and projects for children Helping Your Child Learn Science, with Activities for Children in Preschool Through Grade 5. Revised Fran Lehr,2005 In everyday interactions with their children parents can do many things and do them without lecturing or applying pressure to help them learn science This booklet makes available to parents information that they can use to help their children learn science It includes 1 Some basic information about science 2 Activities for parents and children to do both in the home and the community 3 Practical suggestions for how to work with teachers and schools to help children succeed in science and 4 A list of science related resources including federal sources of information publications for parents science related children s magazines and books and information about science camps Contains 4 footnotes This publication was originally written by Nancy Paulu and Margery Martin It was produced by the Office of Communications and Outreach US Department of Education For a previous edition of this booklet see ED331727 Helping Your Child Use the Library Kathryn Perkinson,1992 Helping Your Child Series ,1997 Announcement of the series with list of books in the series Helping Your Child Learn Science Nancy Paulu,2004 Office of Educational Research and Improvement bulletin ,1992 Your Child and Science Bess-Gene Holt,1982 Helping your child succeed in school ,2002 Learning at Home Pre K-3 Ann Barbour,2012-02 Establish a strong home school connection through family activities that extend Helping Your Child Learn Science BPI Information Services,DIANE Publishing Company,1994-01-01 This well illustrated book suggests ways parents can get young children interested in science so they learn to think critically and gain confidence in their problem solving abilities Includes basic information about science and more than 20 hands on activities involving investigation and experiments Most activities are to be performed in the home some require supervision Activities can easily be adapted for classroom use Appendix provides tips on encouraging schools to develop good science programs and a list of recommended science books and magazines Homeschool Your Child for Free LauraMaery Gold,Joan M.
