Hemingway's well documented fascination with big game hunting is magnificently captured amidst rich descriptions of the beauty and strangeness of East Africa where he and his wife Pauline journeyed in December of 1933 An impassioned portrait of the glory of the African landscape this immediate and deeply felt account has all of the hallmarks of the most evocative travel writing Copyright Libri GmbH All rights reserved Green Hills of Africa Ernest Hemingway, 2018-01-08 His second major venture into nonfiction after Death in the Afternoon Green Hills of Africa is Ernest Hemingway's lyrical journal of a month on safari in the great game country of East Africa where he and his wife Pauline journeyed in December of 1933

Hemingway's well known interest in and fascination with big game hunting is magnificently captured in this evocative account of his trip. In examining the poetic grace of the chase and the ferocity of the kill, Hemingway also looks inward, seeking to explain the lure of the hunt and the primal undercurrent that comes alive on the plains of Africa. Yet Green Hills of Africa is also an impassioned portrait of the glory of the African landscape and of the beauty of a wilderness that was even then being threatened by the incursions of man.

EXCERPT FROM THE BOOK The Green Hills of Africa is an autobiographical story documenting Hemingway's emotions, sites, and experiences as he trekked through the wilds of southeastern Africa in search of rare and challenging game. The opening scene describes Hemingway's quiet frustration and nonchalant attitude when a truck drives by and frightens off the kudu he is hunting. This singular scene shows the anticipation, failure, and dry emotions that are expressed throughout the book. Defeated, Hemingway returns to camp and on the way meets Kandisky, who frightened the kudu. Kadinsky joins Hemingway's party, and it seems that the two will get on quite well, sharing similar tastes in literature and opinion, but the more questions Kandisky asks, the more he wears on Hemingway's nerves.

Sample Book Insights

- 1 The trackers, the theatrical one and the educated one, had heard the noise and told us that it was finished. They had never liked each other, and I didn't like them either.
- 2 The lorry had spoiled it. I had seen a lesser kudu bull come out of the brush to the edge of the opening where the salt was and stand there, heavy-necked, grey and handsome, the horns spiralled against the sun while I sighted on his chest. I refused the shot.
- 3 I met a man named M. Cola on the road who was traveling with a group of upcountry natives. We had not seen a white man for two weeks, and he looked like a caricature of Benchley in Tyrolean costume. He knew my name and wanted to talk about Rilke.
- 4 It was not pleasant to have a time limit by which you must get your kudu. The way to hunt is for as long as you live, against as long as there is such and such an animal.
