Communities of Saint Martin Sharon Farmer,2019-03-15 Sharon Farmer here investigates the ways in which three medieval communities the town of Tours the basilica of Saint Martin there and the abbey of Marmoutier nearby all defined themselves through the cult of Saint Martin She demonstrates how in the early Middle Ages the bishops of Tours used the cult of Martin their fourthcentury predecessor to shape an idealized image of Tours as Martin s town As the heirs to Martin s see the bishops projected themselves as the rightful leaders of the community However in the late eleventh century she shows the canons of Saint Martin where the saint's relics resided and the monks of Marmoutier which Martin had founded took control of the cult and produced new legends and rituals to strengthen their corporate interests Since the basilica and the abbey differed in their spiritualities structures and external ties the canons and monks elaborated and manipulated Martin's cult in quite different ways Farmer shows how one saint's cult lent itself to these varying uses and analyzes the strikingly dissimilar Martins that emerged Her skillful inquiry into the relationship between group identity and cultural expression illuminates the degree to which culture is contested territory Farmer's rich blend of social history and hagiography will appeal to a wide range of medievalists cultural anthropologists religious historians and urban historians

Candi K. Cann, 2018-01-05 Food has played a major role in funerary and memorial practices since the dawn of the human race In the ancient Roman world for example it was common practice to build channels from the tops of graves into the crypts themselves and mourners would regularly pour offerings of food and drink into these conduits to nourish the dead while they waited for the afterlife Funeral cookies wrapped with printed prayers and poems meant to comfort mourners became popular in Victorian England while in China Japan and Korea it is customary to offer food not only to the bereaved but to the deceased with ritual dishes prepared and served to the dead Dying to Eat is the first interdisciplinary book to examine the role of food in death bereavement and the afterlife The contributors explore the phenomenon across cultures and religions investigating topics including tombstone rituals in Buddhism Catholicism and Shamanism the role of death in the Moroccan approach to food and the role of funeral casseroles and church cookbooks in the Southern United States This innovative collection not only offers food for thought regarding the theories and methods behind these practices but also provides recipes that allow the reader to connect to the argument through material experience Illuminating how cooking and corpses both transform and construct social rituals Dying to Eat serves as a fascinating exploration of the foodways of death and bereavement

Black Itinerants of the Gospel G. Hodges, 2016-04-30 John Jea b 1773 and George White 1764 c 1830 were two of the earliest African American autobiographers writing nearly a half century before Frederick Douglass published his famous narrative chronicling his experiences as a slave a freedman and an ardent abolitionist Jea and White represent an earlier generation of African Americans that were born into slavery but granted their freedom shortly after American independence in the 1780s Both men chose to fight against slavery from the pulpit as itinerant Methodist ministers in the North Methodism's staunch anti slavery stance acceptance of African American congregants and widespread use of itinerant preachers enhanced black religious practices and services in the late eighteenth century and the nineteenth century Graham Hodges substantial introduction to the book places these two narratives into historical context and highlights several key themes including slavery in the North the struggle for black freedom after the Revolution and the rise of African American Christianity
