Liberia The Violence Of Democracy:

Liberia Mary H. Moran, 2013-03-01 Liberia a small West African country that has been wracked by violence and civil war since 1989 seems a paradoxical place in which to examine questions of democracy and popular participation Yet Liberia is also the oldest republic in Africa having become independent in 1847 after colonization by an American philanthropic organization as a refuge for Free People of Color from the United States Many analysts have attributed the violent upheaval and state collapse Liberia experienced in the 1980s and 1990s to a lack of democratic institutions and long standing patterns of autocracy secrecy and lack of transparency Liberia The Violence of Democracy is a response from an anthropological perspective to the literature on neopatrimonialism in Africa Mary H Moran argues that democracy is not a foreign import into Africa but that essential aspects of what we in the West consider democratic values are part of the indigenous African traditions of legitimacy and political process In the case of Liberia these democratic traditions include institutionalized checks and balances operating at the local level that allow for the voices of structural subordinates women and younger men to be heard and be effective in making claims Moran maintains that the violence and state collapse that have beset Liberia and the surrounding region in the past two decades cannot be attributed to ancient tribal hatreds or neopatrimonial leaders who are simply a modern version of traditional chiefs Rather democracy and violence are intersecting themes in Liberian history that have manifested themselves in numerous contexts over the years Moran challenges many assumptions about Africa as a continent and speaks in an impassioned voice about the meanings of democracy and violence within Liberia

Searching for Normal in the Wake of the Liberian War Sharon Alane Abramowitz, 2014-07-03 At the end of Liberia's thirteen year civil war the devastated population struggled to rebuild their country and come to terms with their experiences of violence During the first decade of postwar reconstruction hundreds of humanitarian organizations created programs that were intended to heal trauma prevent gendered violence rehabilitate former soldiers and provide psychosocial care to the transitioning populace But the implementation of these programs was not always suited to the specific mental health needs of the population or easily reconciled with the broader aims of reconstruction and humanitarian peacekeeping and psychiatric treatment was sometimes ignored or unevenly integrated into postconflict humanitarian health care delivery Searching for Normal in the Wake of the Liberian War explores the human experience of the massive apparatus of trauma healing and psychosocial interventions during the first five years of postwar reconstruction Sharon Alane Abramowitz draws on extensive fieldwork among the government officials humanitarian leaders and an often overlooked population of Liberian NGO employees to examine the structure and impact of the mental health care interventions in particular the ways they were promised to work with peacekeeping and reconstruction and how the reach and effectiveness of these promises can be measured From this courageous ethnography emerges a geography of trauma and the ways it shapes the lives of those who give and receive care in postwar Liberia

Legitimacy in Peacebuilding Franzisca Zanker, 2017-09-13 The book offers a critical analysis of legitimacy in peacebuilding with a focus on peace negotiations and civil society participation in particular The aim of this book is to unpack the meaning of legitimacy for the population in peacebuilding processes and the relationship this has with civil society involvement There is a growing consensus for addressing local concerns in peacebuilding with the aim of ensuring local ownership Moreover scholars have noted a relationship between civil society inclusion in peace negotiations and legitimacy Yet the very idea of legitimacy remains a black box Using data from original empirical fieldwork including over 100 semi structured interviews and 12 focus group discussions the book focuses on two case studies of negotiations that respectively ended a long civil war in Liberia in 2003 and ended the post election violence in Kenya in 2008 It argues that civil society involvement is conceptually insufficient to show a multidimensional understanding of legitimacy Instead the book shows a complex picture of legitimate peace negotiations based on outcome and participation based characteristics with the involvement of both guarantors of legitimacy and a more general civic agency which includes the general population Through forms of participative communication the passive audience become active stakeholders in the construction of legitimacy This has repercussions for how we think about civil society and peacebuilding more generally This book will be of much interest to students of peacebuilding conflict resolution security studies and IR in general considerable interests at stake in Africa in terms of promoting economic cooperation or gaining access to natural resources In order to maintain these efforts it is imperative that a secure and stable environment is created not only to maintain diplomatic relations with its African partners but also to express the harmonious worldview and peaceful development concepts which rose to prominence under the presidency of Hu Jintao The purpose of this book is therefore to examine the extent to which peacekeeping intervention contributes to China's relations with these countries Two models are employed to shed light on this thesis The rational actor model RAM developed by Graham Allison is used in the first instance to explain the goals for each country the options considered to reach the goals the consequences or outcomes of choice that will ensure whether a particular option is chosen and then selecting the option that has the consequences that rank the highest in the leadership's payoff function However the leadership in policy formulation does not always act in a unitary fashion and often needs the input of governmental actors to produce results in decision making Therefore the bureaucratic politics model BPM of Allison is used in the second instance to indicate the bargaining influencing and compromising positions of the bureaucracy that has reinforced the rational decisions of the leadership The main findings are that peacekeeping interventions serve as a mechanism to facilitate cooperation is significant to China's goals in the mission countries and influence and shape bargaining that occur between bureaucratic actors regarding peacekeeping Principled Negotiation and Mediation in the International Arena Paul J. Zwier, 2013-04-22 This book argues that it can be beneficial for the United States to talk with evil terrorists and other bad actors if it engages a mediator who shares the United States principles yet is pragmatic It shows how the US can make better foreign policy decisions and demonstrate its integrity for promoting democracy and human rights by employing a mediator who facilitates disputes between international actors by moving them along a continuum of principles as political parties act for a country's citizens. This is the first book to integrate theories of rule of law development with conflict resolution methods and it examines ongoing disputes in the Middle East, North Korea, South America, and Africa. It draws on the author's experiences with The Carter Center and judicial and legal advocacy training to provide a sophisticated understanding of the current situation in these countries and of how a strategy of principled pragmatism will give better direction to US foreign policy abroad.

Customary Justice and the Rule of Law in War-torn Societies

Deborah Isser, 2011. The major peacekeeping and stability operations of the last ten years have mostly taken place in countries that have pervasive customary justice systems which pose significant challenges and opportunities for efforts to reestablish the rule of law. These systems are the primary if not sole means of dispute resolution for the majority of the population but post conflict practitioners and policymakers often focus primarily on constructing formal justice institutions in the Western image as opposed to engaging existing traditional mechanisms. This book offers insight into how the rule of law community might make the leap beyond rhetorical recognition of customary justice toward a practical approach that incorporates the realities of its role in justice strategies. Customary Justice and the Rule of Law in War-Torn Societies presents seven in depth case studies that take a broad interdisciplinary approach to the study of the justice system. Moving beyond the narrow lens of legal analysis, the cases Mozambique, Guatemala, East Timor, Afghanistan, Liberia, Iraq, Sudan, examine the larger historical, political, and social factors that shape the character and role of customary justice systems and their place in the overall justice sector. Written by resident experts, the case studies provide advice to rule of law practitioners on how to engage with customary law and suggest concrete ways policymakers can bridge the divide between formal and customary systems in both the short and long terms. Instead of focusing exclusively on ideal legal forms of regulation and integration, this study suggests a holistic and flexible palette of reform options that offers realistic improvements in light of social realities and capacity limitations. The volume highlights how customary justice systems contribute to or detract from stability in the immediate post conflict period and offers an analytical framework for assessing customary justice systems that can be applied in any country.

Franchised States and the Bureaucracy of Peace Niels Nagelhus Schia, 2017-10-30

This book examines a new type of state formation evoked by the rise of transnational rule, what Schia calls franchised states. Drawing on anthropological studying through fieldwork within the UN organization, he demonstrates how peacebuilding activities turned Liberia into an object of governing whereby the UN in seeking to build the state also became the state. The sovereign state of Liberia here emerges as a franchise rather than a self-contained entity. Two implications follow. First, that international peacebuilding turns post conflict countries into clients of the international community. Second, that sovereignty is no longer exclusively associated with the state; it is organized in and through specific practices of governing where a state actor is only one among a range of actors. With these findings, the book moves beyond previous work on peacebuilding by focusing on the unbundling of sovereignty It contributes to the literature on the changing forms of sovereignty by showing the specific ways in which sovereignty is organized packaged and enacted often by actors working under international auspices This book will be of interest to practitioners and students interested in international organizations international relations the study of international practices UN and peacebuilding How to Belong Belinda A. Stillion Southard, 2018-10-05 In How to Belong Belinda Stillion Southard examines how women leaders throughout the world have asserted their rhetorical agency in troubling economic social and political conditions Rather than utilizing the concept of citizenship to bolster political influence the women in the case studies presented here rely on the power of relationships to create a more habitable world With the rise of global capitalism many nation states that have profited from invigorated flows of capital have also responded to the threat of increased human mobility by heightening national citizenship's exclusionary power Through a series of case studies that include women grassroots protesters a woman president and a woman United Nations director Stillion Southard analyzes several examples of women all as embodied subjects in a particular transnational context pushing back against this often violent rise in nationalist rhetoric While scholars have typically used the concept of citizenship to explain what it means to belong Stillion Southard instead shows how these women have reimagined belonging in ways that have enabled them to create national regional and global communities As part of a broader conversation centered on exposing the violence of national citizenship and proposing ways of rejecting that violence this book seeks to provide answers through the powerful rhetorical practices of resilient and inspiring women who have successfully negotiated what it means to belong to be included and to enact change beyond the boundaries of citizenship I Did It to Save My Life Catherine Bolten, 2012-10-01 Utilizing narratives of seven different people soldier rebel student trader evangelist father and politician I Did it To Save My Life provides fresh insight into how ordinary Sierra Leoneans survived the war that devastated their country for a decade Individuals in the town of Makeni narrate survival through the rubric of love and by telling their stories and bringing memory into the present create for themselves a powerful basis on which to reaffirm the rightness of their choices and orient themselves to a livable everyday The book illuminates a social world based on love a deep compassionate relationship based on material exchange and nurturing that transcends romance and binds people together across space and through time In situating their wartime lives firmly in this social world they call into question the government's own narrative that Makeni residents openly collaborated with the rebel RUF during its three year occupation of the town Residents argue instead that it was the government's disloyalty to its people rather than rebel invasion and occupation which destroyed the town and forced uneasy co existence between civilians and militants Encyclopedia of Conflicts Since World War II James Ciment, 2015-03-27 Thoroughly revised to include 25 conflicts not covered in the previous edition as well as expanded and updated information on previous coverage this illustrated reference presents descriptions and analyses of more than 170 significant post World War II conflicts around the globe Organized by region for
