Participation Trophies

Not all Athletes Should Get a Participation Trophy

CONTEXT CLUES

When a new student joins a team, the coach usually says, "Welcome to the team. We're glad you're here. We hope you'll enjoy being part of our team." The coach usually says this to all new students. But what if the coach says this to only some students? Should the coach say this to all students?

All Athletes Should Get a Trophy

Receiving a trophy is an athlete's most important accomplishment. It shows that the athlete has worked hard and achieved something. It also shows that the coach and the other athletes on the team are proud of the athlete's achievement. Every athlete should receive a trophy.

Not all Athletes Should Get a Participation Trophy

The idea that every athlete who participates in a sport should receive a trophy is a common one. But is it really fair? Should every athlete who participates in a sport receive a trophy? Or should only the best athletes receive a trophy? This is a question that many people have asked. Some people think that every athlete should receive a trophy. They think that it is important to encourage all athletes to participate in sports. They think that it is important to show all athletes that they are valued. Other people think that only the best athletes should receive a trophy. They think that it is important to show that there are winners and losers. They think that it is important to show that hard work and talent are rewarded. This is a question that has no easy answer. It is a question that every coach and every parent should think about. It is a question that every athlete should think about. It is a question that every person who is involved in sports should think about.
