sources including naval war diaries and decoded communications to provide an objective account. The narrative progresses by first setting the stage with pre-war strategies, then dissecting the battle itself through the lens of naval power projection, and finally assessing the battle's strategic outcome and its influence on subsequent events like the Battle of Midway. By focusing on the decision-making processes of commanders and the innovative use of carrier-based aircraft, Coral Sea offers valuable insights for military history enthusiasts and those interested in the broader implications of this decisive engagement. It emphasizes the strategic value of geographic locations and connects to broader fields such as political science and economic history.

Life at the Sea's Frontiers Richard Perry, 1974     IEEE Conference on Engineering in the Ocean Environment. Record, 1970     The New York Times Book Review, 1978     The Publishers Weekly, 1972     Kin Thom van Dooren, Matthew Chrulew, 2022-02-07. The contributors to Kin draw on the work of anthropologist Deborah Bird Rose (1946–2018), a foundational voice in environmental humanities to examine the relationships of interdependence and obligation between human and nonhuman lives. Through a close engagement over many decades with the Aboriginal communities of Yarralin and Lingara in northern Australia, Rose's work explored possibilities for entangled forms of social and environmental justice. She sought to bring the insights of her Indigenous teachers into dialogue with the humanities and the natural sciences to describe and passionately advocate for a world of kin grounded in a profound sense of the connectivities and relationships that hold us together. Kin's contributors take up Rose's conceptual frameworks, often pushing academic fields beyond their traditional objects and methods of study. Together, the essays do more than pay tribute to Rose's scholarship; they extend her ideas and underscore her ongoing critical and ethical relevance for a world still enduring and resisting ecocide and genocide.
